Heart attack victims have a better chance in Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — There are so many people in Seattle trained to deal with heart attack emergencies that David J. Evans had his life saved twice last year by those around him.

More than 100,000 people, 5 per cent of Seattle's metropolitan area population, have been specially trained to give first aid to heart attack victims in the critical moments before a doctor or an ambulance arrives.

So far, the citizen heart doctors have been credited with keeping more than 500 people alive — people who might have died if they hadn't received aid seconds after they were stricken.

Evans collapsed one day last year at his office. He had no pulse. A colleague, Niels Hansen, was a graduate of the special training and recognized the coronary symptoms. He administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation while another worker called the Fire Department emergency squad, then he showed another man the kind of chest massage that keeps blood circulating.

By the time the emergency squad arrived, Evans showed signs of life.

"It gives you a warm glow to save a life," Hansen said later.

Four months after that, Evans collapsed while shopping near a newsstand. News dealer Earl Patch was another graduate of the special training. Evans was revived again.

Koichi Sumida had a heart attack on the golf course but was saved by three teen-agers who had taken the training. Girl Scout Mary Ann Palkey revived her father. The wife of Harold Maxum saved her husband three times.

The training is in a three-hour course run by the Seattle Fire Department for anyone over 12 who wants to enroll. Doctors from the University of Washington's Harborview Medical Center serve as teachers along with specially trained firemen.

The training program, called Medic Two, started here in 1971. Since then, similar programs have begun in other cities and towns across the nation, among them Miami, Los Angeles and Columbus, Ohio.

"Research basically indicated that about two-thirds of people who were going to die of heart disease did so outside the hospital," said Dr. Herman Alvarez, a cardiologist and an organizer of Medic Two.

"We looked at a bunch of people who dropped dead suddenly. We saw people with heart disease not really having heart attacks, but having an electrical disturbance of heart rhythm," he said. "It became obvious that time was a critical factor in whether they could survive."

William Landers, the Fire Department's deputy chief, says the program has more than doubled the long-term survival rate of heart attack victims in metropolitan Seattle. It is now 26 per cent of all who have heart attacks, compared with 11 per cent in 1971, he said.

"We are resuscitating more people ... than was reasonable to expect," Alvarez said.

SAL MINEO
. . . stab victim

Actor Sal Mineo, 37, stabbed to death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Sal Mineo, known as "The Switchblade Kid" for his many film roles as a teen-age tough, has been stabbed to death outside his Hollywood apartment house, authorities said.

Witnesses told police they heard screams and saw a man with long, blond hair running from the alley where Mineo was killed Thursday night.

Sheriff's Information Officer Anthony Silas said investigators were still searching for the murder weapon. He said there was no immediate indication of the motive for the attack.

Neighbors found the 37-year-old actor lying face-up in a pool of blood about 20 feet from a parking area behind his apartment, police said. He had been stabbed in the chest.

Bill Jones, a neighbor in the moderately expensive apartments near the Sunset Strip, said, "We heard about three yells. The last yell was 'Help.' We rushed out and saw Sal lying face-up, breathing really hard.

"He was like in a daze, trying to breathe. He didn't say anything."

Another neighbor, Mary Chance, 21, said, "It was too quiet. Then all of a sudden those screams, we heard those screams."

Neighbors said Mineo was quiet and kept to himself.

Authorities said the actor apparently lived alone and that his family resides in New York.

Mineo was in rehearsal for a starring role in "P.S. Your Cat Is Dead," a play scheduled to open next week at the Westwood Playhouse.

Recent television appearances by the baby-faced actor included roles in the Ellery Queen and Joe Forrester shows.

Highlights of his acting career included his portrayal of a juvenile delinquent along with James Dean in "Rebel Without A Cause" and later as an Israeli terrorist in "Exodus." Both performances won him Academy Award nominations.

As a delinquent in "Dino," he won a television Emmy in 1955.

A Gene Krupa fan, one of his favorite roles was that of the drummer in "The Gene Krupa Story." He more recently appeared as an ape in "Escape from the Planet of the Apes."

Mineo won a gold record in the late 1950s for "Start Moving."

Mineo was born Jan. 10, 1939, in New York City, the son of Italian immigrant parents. He began his show business career when he was 11.

Claims it would be too costly

Ford vetoes public work bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today vetoed a $6.1 billion public works employment bill, saying it would "do little to create jobs for the unemployed" and perhaps cost in excess of $25,000 per job.

He said the claims of the bill's sponsors that it would create 600,000 to 800,000 new jobs were "badly exaggerated."

Ford said administration experts estimated that at most, some 250,000 jobs would be created over a period of several years and the impact would come in late 1977 or 1978.

At that point, he said, the total would come to no more than 100,000 to 120,000 new jobs "barely a one-tenth of one per cent improvement in the unemployment rate."

Ford called the bill "little more than election year pork barrel," and said it had "so many deficiencies and undesirable provisions that it would do more harm than good."

He suggested instead that Congress "act quickly on my tax and budget proposals, which I believe will provide the jobs for the unemployed that we all want."

"The best and most effective way to create new jobs," the President said "is to pursue balanced economic policies that encourage the growth of the private sector without risking a new round of inflation."

He said this was the core of his economic policies which he said were expected "to foster the creation of 2 million to 2.5 million new private-sector jobs in 1976 and more than 2 million additional jobs in 1977. These will be lasting, productive jobs, not temporary jobs payrolled by the American taxpayer."

A veto override battle was anticipated and House leaders already have scheduled reconsideration of the bill next Thursday.

The House, which passed the public works jobs bill Jan. 29 by a vote of 321 to 80, appears to have the needed votes for an override. The Senate passed the original bill last July, 65 to 28, more than the two-thirds needed to override. The Senate passed the final compromise version by a voice vote Dec. 17.

The President says the bill will cost too much and would take too long to create needed jobs. He has argued repeatedly in recent speeches that public service jobs are not the solution to unemployment and he prefers tax incentives to get private industry to expand and take on more workers.

Backers of the bill contend it would create some 600,000 jobs with grants of $2.5 billion to state and local governments for construction or improvements of schools, sewers, roads and other public works projects.

It would be aimed at helping construction and related industries that have been hardest hit by the recession.

Another controversial item is an "antirecession" aid provision of grants to state and local governments. The aid would be triggered when unemployment reaches 6 per cent or higher to guarantee continuation of necessary public services.

It would pay out $125 million for each three-month period in the next 15 months for each half percentage point above the 6 per cent unemployment percentage. It aims to fill the gap where rising government costs have resulted in the dismissal of public employes at the local level.

Large cities with high urban unemployment rates would benefit most, and mayors and governors have been lobbying for passage of the jobs aid measure. Some congressional sources have said Ford might be more favorable to the "antirecession" provision if it were presented as a separate piece of legislation.

Also included is $1.4 billion for an already existing program for sewage treatment plants.

Lily Pons dies at 71

DALLAS (AP) — Retired international opera star Lily Pons died today in a Dallas hospital. She was 71.

She had entered the hospital Jan. 11. The cause of her death was not disclosed.

A native of France, the coloratura sorprano had lived in a swank Dallas apartment for the past 15 years following a career as one of the world's most celebrated divas of the operatic stage.

She made her debut in the United States with the Metropolitan Opera in New York, which she left in 1956. She was often seen on battlefront tours during World War II.

Two women rob banks in Pomona, La Puente in separate holdups

An apparently pregnant robber held up the Crocker National Bank at 495 N. Garey Ave. in Pomona Tuesday afternoon shortly after another woman robbed the Security Pacific National Bank branch in La Puente.

In Pomona, teller Deborah C. Chambers, 24, said the woman walked up to her position and demanded all the money fast "or I'll blow your head off." She pointed a revolver at the teller and placed a large handbag on the counter.

The victim removed money from a drawer and placed it on the counter and the woman placed the cash and the revolver in the handbag and left the bank through the west door.

The robber was described as black, about 26, 5 feet 2 weighing between 110-120 pounds. She wore a maternity smock over blue jeans and had on a blue hat and large sunglasses.

In the other robbery, a lone woman threatened a teller at the Security Pacific National Bank at 1633 N. Hacienda Blvd. with a short-barrelled revolver and escaped with a small amount of cash.

That bank robber also was also described as black. She was about 20 years old and wore a brown blouse and blue pants. She was last seen driving from the bank parking lot in a late-model Chevrolet El Camino.

Report Americans OK in new Nigeria coup

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Self-proclaimed "young revolutionaries" announced they overthrew the government of Gen. Murtala Muhammed today because of "difficulties" with his seven-month-old regime. There were unconfirmed reports that Muhammed and several other persons were killed.

However, a U.S. official in Lagos said in a telephone conversation with The Associated Press in Washington that the rebels, who announced the coup over the radio, may have control of the state radio station only, and not the entire country.

A Nigerian lieutenant colonel whose name sounded like Dimka read the coup announcement. He said the government was dissolved, travel was forbidden and a curfew from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. was ordered. "We are all together," the broadcast said.

Among the Americans currently in Nigeria are Arthur Ashe, Dick Stockton, Harold Solomon and Eddie Dibbs, all taking part in a tennis tournament.

But Ed Noel, deputy information officer at the U.S. Embassy, said in his telephone conversation with The AP in Washington that all Americans in Lagos were safe, either at home or in the U.S. Embassy. Noel also reported sporadic shooting, brief panic and nearly empty streets in the Nigerian capital.

Murtalla, a hero in Nigeria's civil war with Biafra, seized power himself last July in a bloodless coup, the fourth since Nigeria gained independence from Britain in 1960.

Manila jarred by earthquake

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — Manila was hit today by one of the hardest earthquakes to strike The Philippines capital in recent years.

Tall buildings swayed. Construction workers clung to shaking superstructures. Thousands of late-afternoon shoppers and workers fled into the streets. But no damage was reported.

The quake had an intensity of 5 on the Rossi-Forel Scale.

A Richter reading was not available.

An aftershock of lesser intensity was felt two hours later. Again, no damage was reported.

WHAT DID I DO?

Dolores Halvorson holds her niece, Kim McGettrick, 2, after the youngster drove the sedan through the front window of a market in Montclair. The child wasn't hurt.

Two-year-old's first driving test a smashing experience

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

Kim McGettrick, 2, had her first solo driving experience Thursday and she ended up inside a small market in Montclair.

The youngster, who resides in a trailer park at 4762 Mission Blvd., Ontario, was left in the small car by her aunt, who went inside the market at 5093 Mission Blvd., to make a purchase.

When the aunt left, Kim slid behind the steering wheel and turned on the ignition switch, which caused the vehicle to move forward, said highway patrolmen.

The car lurched forward and crossed a side-walk before going through the plate glass window. Kim then turned off the ignition, stopping the vehicle.

Dolores Halvorson, the aunt who resides in the same trailer court, said after the accident that Kim stuck her finger in her mouth and became very bashful.

The aunt is still trying to figure how the car started so quickly. Because of a bad car battery, she has had to use a jumper cable this week to get the vehicle started.

"We even had to jump the battery before we left home for the market," she said.

Other than her feelings, Kim wasn't hurt, said officials.

Weatherman sees clouds but no rain

A cloudy weekend is predicted by the weatherman for the valley, but there will be no rain.

Daytime temperatures are expected to remain in the upper 60 and low 70s, dropping to the mid-40s at night.

Skiing conditions in the Mt. Baldy area are described as ideal with up to two feet of snow on the slopes. A large number of Southlanders are expected to visit the snow area, which starts at the 5,000-foot elevation, just north of Baldy Village.

Weather

Mostly cloudy through the weekend with little change in temperatures. High today 71, low tonight 45, high Saturday 70. The high Thursday was 70 and the overnight low was 46. Saturday's sunrise 6:37, sunset 5:34.

Corps to teach skills to young

Brown job plan similar to Ayala proposal

A proposal unveiled this week to establish a California Conservation Corps to provide young men and women with marketable job skills is similar to an earlier proposal Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist.

With the backing of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., a bill was introduced in the state Senate to set aside $10 million to make available productive employment and public service opportunities for those wanting jobs. Its main intent is to provide young people with basic job skills that are needed and can be used in the private sector.

Ayala proposed last September that a volunteer camp program be established for unemployed youths with emphasis given to providing jobs and training to parolees. The Chino legislator suggested camps similar to the former Civilian Conservation Corps be used as a halfway point in the rehabilitation of wards released on parole from youth authority institutions.

Ayala said he would incorporate his proposal with the bill introduced by state Sen. Jerry Smith, D-12th Dist., with himself as the principal co-author.

Brown revealed his conservation corps proposal in his State of the State address last January. He then asked Ayala and Smith to introduce the bill in the state Senate.

"The governor has endorsed the bill and has funds allocated in the state budget to finance it," he said.

Because of the research in his own proposal, Ayala was asked to join Smith in introducing the bill.

"Although the two programs are not exactly alike, I will seek to include some of my proposals before the bill reaches its final stage," said Ayala.

Under the proposal, the program's first year emphasis would be toward projecting, conserving, developing and enhancing the state's natural resources in both rural and urban areas. Later programs would be developed in the arts, health services and social services.

There will be no attempt to replace work normally done by the private sector or by public agencies under normal budgeting procedures, emphasized the two senators.

Should the bill be approved, the conservation corps would begin recruting next July and have 1,200 persons employed by January. In addition, it would absorb the 450 members of the existing Ecology Corps involved in California Forestry Division firefighting programs.

The corps workers would be mostly from 20 to 25, be paid the $2.10 minimum hourly wage for six month enrollments that could be renewed for a total of two years.

These selected would be housed at the eight Ecology Corps centers and at camps at Yountville and Folsom. In addition, officials are checking the possible use of military property such as Camp Roberts.

Ayala said one proposal he will seek to incorporate is the use of retired persons with professional or vocational skills to serve as instructors.

The senate said these people have a "reserve of knowledge" that could benefit the young people. "Not only would their skills help the young people, it would also help them," he added.

Ayala said the bill, now in its working form, will eventually carry both his and Smith's names. "I am delighted to be selected by the governor to have authored the bill with Smith," he said.

Patty's ex to testify today

Defendant weeps during playing of 'Tania' tape

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With the prosecution ready to rest its case, Patricia Hearst's attorneys planned to call her ex-fiance today to recount the night of the kidnaping that ultimately led to her trial for bank robbery.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. said he would wrap up his case against the 21-year-old newspaper heiress today when he resumed questioning FBI agent Thomas J. Padden, "our final witness."

Chief defense counsel F. Lee Bailey said he would immediately begin reconstructing Miss Hearst's kidnaping by calling her former fiance, Steven Weed, to the stand.

Weed was left beaten and bleeding at their Berkeley apartment the chilly night of Feb. 4, 1974, when the Symbionese Liberation Army abducted Miss Hearst. He and the defendant have not met since the kidnaping. Miss Hearst was captured here Sept. 18.

The defense maintains that Miss Hearst took part in the bank robbery two months after her kidnaping out of fear for her life.

Browning based his case on Miss Hearst's own words and actions during her bizarre 19-month odyssey through the terrorist underground and on testimony of witnesses who saw her during that time.

The evidence he offered included bank camera photos of her during a San Francisco robbery two months after the kidnaping and a tape recording in which she proclaimed allegiance to the SLA.

Browning called 32 witnesses, including law enforcement officers, persons at the scene of the bank robbery and a Los Angeles area teenager who was kidnaped and spent a night with Miss Hearst and SLA members William and Emily Harris.

Bailey has secured U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter's approval to take the jury to two hideouts where Miss Hearst was kept in closets in the weeks just after her kidnaping.

They also will visit the bank that Miss Hearst and the SLA robbed on April 15, 1974.

Bailey said the excursion will be Monday. There will be no courtroom session because of a legal holiday.

The 13th day of the trial ended emotionally for the pale defendant Thursday as the government played for the jury a tape from the SLA featuring Miss Hearst saying she voluntarily joined her captors in the bank heist.

The frail young woman wept when she heard the strident, angry voice of SLA chieftain Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze spew a cold, militaristic account of the bank robbery.

Her shoulders shook visibly, and tears rolled down her face. She seemed to slightly regain her composure when a voice now identified as Harris railed about the news media and authorities fanning racism.

However, when her voice, soft but brimming with disdain, spoke as "Tania, a soldier in the people's army" she bowed her head and nervously rubbed her temple and lips.

She breathed heavily when Cinque ended the tape with the harsh credo that characterized every SLA communication, "Death to the fascist insect that preys upon the life of the people."

Carter stared at the defendant when she referred to Weed on the tape as a "sexist, ageist pig" and then turned toward the recording machine again.

Her father, San Francisco Examiner president Randolph Hearst, stiffened when she called him "Adolf," presumably a reference to Adolf Hitler.

Her mother, Catherine, sat stone-faced, but the seven women and five men on the jury appeared enraptured as they followed her words with a government-prepared transcript.

The jury must decide whether Miss Hearst was forced under threat of death to rob the bank and make the dramatic tape.

Browning originally intended to play only the portion containing Miss Hearst's speech, but Bailey insisted that the jury hear the entire reel.

DeFreeze and five other SLA members were killed in a gun battle with Los Angeles police a month later. The Harrises are in custody in Los Angeles.

Bailey fought long and bitterly to have the tape barred from her trial, contending that "words forced from her should not be used to convict her."

Miss Hearst, at a special two-day hearing this week on whether to admit the tape, testified that her boastful revolutionary words were written by slain SLA member Angela Atwood.

If she had refused to make the recording, she said, "I was told that I would be killed."

Mercy flight leaves valley with load of food, medicines

With "Mercy Airlift Guatemala" emblazoned on its nose, a giant Lockheed Electra Jet took off from Ontario International Airport Thursday afternoon loaded with 30,000 pounds of medicines, blankets, food and other vital supplies for the victims of last week's earthquake in Guatemala.

C. Mervin Russell, founder-president of Mercy Airlift of Upland, flew with the plane to coordinate the distribution of supplies to victims through a program being operated by churches in the country where an estimated 17,000 have been killed and more than one million are homeless.

The Lockheed plane was being piloted on this trip by famed test pilot Herman "Fish" Salmon with Capt. Tom Malone, a Western Airlines pilot, as copilot.

Russell will return to the valley this weekend. Then he and Capt. Carl Hoffman, a retired Delta Airlines pilot, will each ferry planes loaded with more supplies to Guatemala. Russell will fly a smaller Aero Commander which will be used to distribute supplies to smaller airstrips and Hoffman will pilot a Mercy Airlift-owned DC-3.

Russell is personally carrying a letter from Montclair Mayor Harold Hayes to Carlos F. Contreras, mayor of Antigua, Guatemala, Montclair's sister city. Mercy Airlift is delivering supplies collected by the sister city volunteers for the Latin Americans.

All medical supplies and blankets aboard the flight were donated by individuals and firms throughout the west. At OIA, the California Air National Guard provided the forklift for loading and Air California offered the power for starting the motors of the Lockheed jet.

Mercy Airlift is seeking tax-deductible contributions to help defray the costs of the airlifts. Interested persons may mail donations to the local office, 1294 W. Seventh St., Upland, or call 982-1566.

Look-alike to testify in Soliah case

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A virtual look-alike for Steven Soliah says he entered a Sacramento bank at the outset of a fatal bank robbery in which Soliah is accused of taking part.

The witness, Dr. Victor Kops, is expected to be central to the defense case — not for his words, but for his appearance.

At nearly 6 feet tall, Kops is several inches taller than Soliah, and his hair is a bit darker than the defendant's sandy locks. But in face and hairstyle he bears an eerie resemblance to Soliah.

Defense attorney Sheldon Otis said outside the courtroom that he will contend a key prosecution witness who claims she saw Soliah at the bank could have been looking at Kops instead.

Kops, 30, a clinical psychologist, testified for the defense Thursday at a pretrial hearing for Soliah, a 27-year-old house painter and former companion of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst.

Soliah is charged with taking part in a $15,000 robbery of a Crocker National Bank branch in suburban Carmichael last April 21 in which a woman bank customer was killed.

Kops was called to support a defense motion to prohibit some eyewitness testimony on the grounds that the prosecution prodded witnesses into identifying Soliah.

No food aid to nonpoor collegians

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California is the 50th and last state to adopt federal rules that bar food stamps for college students from non poverty families, say state health officials.

Bob Nance, spokesman for the Department of Health, said Thursday that papers of compliance would be filed today by Mario Obledo, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s Health and Welfare Agency secretary.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture issued the ruling regarding college students on Jan. 8, 1975, and California's non-compliance was an issue Wednesday at a House Agriculture Committee hearing.

Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., said the food stamps program should be pulled out of California if it did not comply with Federal regulations.

Basically, a student cannot receive food stamps under the new rules if his parents do not qualify for public assistance and claim him as a dependent, Nance said.

Illegals fly elsewhere via LAX

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Immigration officials say Los Angeles International Airport is now a major way station for illegal Mexican aliens.

Richard Batchelor, deputy chief patrol agent of the U.S. Border Patrol, said Thursday that organized alien smugglers are driving Mexican jobseekers up Interstate 5 through San Diego to Los Angeles, and then putting the aliens on planes bound for eastern cities.

Batchelor blamed the rise in airport alien traffic on the closure of the Border Patrol's highway checkpoints, which were declared unconstitutional by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"They were the major deterrents against smuggling illegal aliens from the border area up to Los Angeles," he said.

Within the last week, nearly 400 illegal aliens were arrested in Chicago and other cities after arriving on planes from Los Angeles, Border Patrol officials said.

Leonard Chapman, commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said surveilance at Los Angeles International and other West Coast airports has been stepped up following those arrests.

Navy undermanned in key job areas

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Chief of Naval Personnel says the United States Navy is badly undermanned in key job areas.

Vice Adm. James Watkins said Wednesday that 35 per cent of the navy's ships and half its aircraft squadrons are either barely ready or totally unfit for combat due to a lack of skilled officers and men.

Hearst on estate bombing: 'maniacs'

SAN SIMEON, Calif. (AP) — Patricia Hearst's parents blame "maniacs" for the $1million-plus bombing of an ornate guest house at the fabled Hearst Castle while their daughter is on trial in San Francisco.

There were no warning calls Thursday before the blast ripped through a building which 53 tourists had passed through just three minutes earlier, authorities said.

San Luis Obispo County sheriff's deputies said there were no arrests and no suspects. The FBI was investigating phone calls to two San Francisco radio stations claiming the New World Liberation Front was responsible for the explosion here, 150 miles south of San Francisco.

The NWLF is a terrorist group that has claimed responsibility for numerous San Francisco Bay area bombings.

Deputies said at least $1 million worth of treasures were damaged in the Casa del Sol, one of three mansion-sized guest houses near the main castle. They said the extent of structural damage has not been determined.

"These people have the same mentality as those who killed Marcus Foster and kidnaped Patricia. They're nothing but a bunch of maniacs," said Randolph A. Hearst after he learned of the blast and rushed from the courtroom where his daughter is on trial on bank robbery charges.

Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster was killed by the Symbionese Liberation Army, the same group that kidnaped Miss Hearst.

"It just shows the vicious, terrible people that Patty was with. It's no wonder she was terrified of them," an angry and shaken Mrs. Hearst told reporters.

There was no immediate indication that the bombing at the Shangri-la of late publishing magnate William Randolph Hearst was connected with his granddaughter's trial.

Visitors to the estate, which became a state historical monument in 1958, were evacuated from all buildings and questioned by authorities for possible clues to the bombing.

Ron McCullough, manager of the castle for the state park service, said the bomb appeared to have been planted under a bench outside the Casa del Sol, about 100 yards from the turreted-castle. When the Hearsts visit the estate, they stay in another guest house, the Casa del Mar.

"It blew right through the wall and damaged quite a bit of furnishings, glass and a balcony," said McCullough. He said it would take an architect and curator to evaluate the full extent of damage.

Claremont settles on a tree for downtown

Claremont finally has a tree to put into the 22 planters set for construction on Yale Avenue between First and Fourth streets.

The City Council Tuesday night accepted the recommendation from the Parkways and Trees Commission that the planter tree be the Chinese pistache.

Parks and Recreation Director Fred Hawkins reported that the pistache will offer the height, spread and brilliant foliage color which the department was seeking for an unusual tree for the planter areas.

"It is not a fussy tree as to soil or water, and is a reliable tree for our area," Hawkins said.

The commission had held a special meeting last Thursday to discuss an laternate tree to the Northern Red Oak, which the group at a previous meeting had recommended as a planter tree, but with "grave reservations."

The commission earlier had recommended the Evergreen Elm, and then the London Plane Tree, a sycamore, but those suggestions were turned down.

The pistache will be planted in bare-root form in 18-foot-wide planters, jutting 18 feet into the street, along Yale Avenue.

Older residents have expressed concern that they may not be able to drive their cars into Village parking spaces because of the planters jutting into the street.

Jackson driven from speaker's platform

FORCED FROM STAGE

Democratic presidential hopeful Sen. Henry M. Jackson listens to antibusing demonstrator Thursday night at a rally in Boston. Foes of forced busing drove him from the platform.

Opponents of busing shout candidate down

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, was forced off a campaign platform here by vocal opponents of busing for school integration.

"Did you not vote with Ted Kennedy for busing?" one angry member of a crowd of about 300 demanded of Jackson during a speaking appearance Thursday night. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has been a target of vocal busing foes in this city where a court-ordered school integration program is in its second year.

"I want to find out, if busing is the law of the land, how come it's not in the suburbs where the judges live," another man shouted.

The Washington senator at first tried to calm the crowd but made no headway and eventually left.

In 1972, Jackson supported a proposed constitutional amendment to ban busing. He later proposed that busing be permitted only when a panel of three judges decided that no other remedy was available and that it would not harm education.

Recently, Jackson has been wooing the antibusing vote in Massachusetts, and he seemed surprised by Thursday night's outburst. When the first challenge came, he asked, "Are you trying to be funny?"

Dan O'Leary of South Boston, who identified himself as a campaign worker for Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, another candidate for the Democratic nomination, said the group had come to find out why Jackson had changed his position on busing.

Wallace, like Jackson campaigning for the March 2 Massachusetts primary, has accused Jackson of changing his views after discovering that many people oppose busing.

A woman, who identified herself as Pat Russell, head of an antibusing organization called the Charlestown Information Center, screamed loudly and repeatedly at the senator.

"I would like to know, are you against it or are you saying it as a political gimmick?" she demanded, referring to busing. "My children are at stake."

When he could interrupt the questioners, Jackson said he would uphold the Constitution and that he is for integration.

As Jackson left the meeting hall surrounded by Secret Service agents, several members of the crowd shook his hand and one said, "We are not all like that."

Brown backs lid on judges' salary hikes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. will back a major court reform measure placing a lid on judges' salary increases in California, a Brown aide says.

Anthony Kline, Brown's legal affairs secretary, said in an interview with The Associated Press Thursday that the measure will be a constitutional amendment requiring legislative and voter approval.

Under the proposal, a five per cent lid would be placed on judges' salary raises starting July 1, 1979.

The measure would combine Municipal and Superior Courts into a single trial court system and set a mandatory retirement age for judges at 70.

If the legislature places the measure on the Nov. 2 ballot and voters approve it, that would force about 20 current judges into retirement, Kline said. Those judges include Associate Supreme Court Justices Mathew Tobriner and Marshall McComb, he added.

The law now gives judges automatic cost-of-living increases tied to the consumer price index. Last year, Kline said, that increase was over 12 per cent. This year it will be about 9 per cent, he said.

Since his election, the Democratic governor has been critical of the size of California judges' salaries. After a Senate committee killed a bill abolishing the automatic raise hikes, Brown said:

"Judicial salaries in California are very generous. They are among the highest in the nation, ranging from $41,677 to $61,609 a year."

"...For those enjoying such privileged status to now oppose realistic limits that would treat them like other state employes is unseemly and in the long run is against the best interests of the judiciary."

Personality, not the issues—how voters judging

NEW YORK (AP) — Potential voters are judging presidential candidates more on their personalities than their stands on major issues, a national survey conducted by The New York Times and CBS News shows.

Except for Alabama Gov. George Wallace's stand on busing, none of the major Democratic candidates has emerged at this point as a "leading spokesman" on the major issues, according to The Times, which published the results of the survey in today's editions.

"Nor do the issues seem to explain why Republicans favor President Ford and others, Ronald Reagan," The Times said.

Jimmy Carter appeared to be the cheif beneficiary of this situation, the survey found, with the former Georgia governor tending "to be seen as all things to all people — as a liberal to liberals, a moderate to moderates and a conserative to conservatives," The Times said.

Noting that Carter appeared to be seen much less clearly on most issues than the other candiates, the survey found that 21 per cent of those polled felt he favored a ban on abortions, 36 per cent felt he was against a ban and 43 per cent didn't know. On the issue of detente, 36 per cent said he opposed it, 33 per cent said he favored it and 31 per cent said they didn't know.

Among the GOP contenders, the survey showed that President Ford "seems to be holding his own among his party even though Republicans tend to think of him as less of a leader and less competent than his rival, Mr. Reagan," The Times said.

The newspaper said that the issues that "generate large majorities of pro and con" included abortion, busing for racial integration and proposals that the goverment provide jobs for all, and transfer federal social programs to the states.

Of Democrats who had an impression of Carter, 75 per cent had a favorable opinion, more than for any other candidate. With a favorable rating of 36 per cent, Wallace was the least favorably regarded among the Democratic candidates.

Explosion in Pomona; school track fire set

Vandals are suspected of starting a $3,000 fire at Claremont High School's track field and an explosion behind a commercial building in Pomona caused concussion damage in the neighborhood Thursday night, according to local fire departments.

Foam padding and nylon netting used in the pole vault pit at the high school's athletic field were destroyed in the fire.

Capt. Ralph Stapf of the Los Angeles County Fire Department said the fire is being investigated today, but that there appeared to be little doubt that the cause was vandalism. The fire was reported at 9:44 p.m.

At almost the same minute, a high explosive was set off at the rear of 842 N. Garey Ave., Pomona.

Pomona Fire Chief John Fowlkes said that a West Covina youth was questioned Thursday night and released to his father.

The explosion was heard as far away as Holt and East End avenues by a Pomona police officer.

First reports indicate that while the building nearest the explosion was not seriously damaged, windows were broken in a few homes in the neighborhood and one homeowner reported a cracked wall.

Fire officials are continuing the investigation today to determine the type of explosive used and the container involved, Fowlkes said.

Sheriff's deputies this morning reported that the body of an unidentified young woman was found in a remote area of the Angeles National Forest near Crystal Lake.

Details of the discovery were lacking, but the victim was described as white and between 16 and 20 years old. She apparently had been killed by a smashing blow to her head.

The body was taken to the coroner's office for an autopsy and attempts at identification. Meanwhile, the Los Angeles County Sheriff's homicide bureau and crime lab technicians were examining the location where the body was found — an area off Highway 39 about three-tenths of a mile north of the Crystal Lake turnoff.

Two youths who admitted playing the role of two characters in the fantasy novel "Hobbit" and kidnaping a 17-year-old WEST COVINA youth at knifepoint Tuesday were arrested as runaways by sheriff's deputies and turned over to police Thursday.

The youths, one 16 and the other 14, both from Santa Cruz, according to Ontario police were arrested in Fontana Thursday. While talking to sheriff's deputies they admitted taking part in the kidnaping of Michael Barthen, 17, of West Covina and a burglary in Santa Cruz.

Barthel, after being rescued from the trunk of his car at the Union 76 Truck Stop at Milliken Avenue and the San Bernardino Freeway Tuesday, told officers two youths who called themselves "Elrond" and "Aragorn" from the novel "Hobbit" had at knifepoint forced him to drive from Azusa to Ontario.

Before arriving in Ontario the West Covina youth said the men forced him into the trunk of his car and locked him inside.

Barthel began kicking the trunk and yelling for help when his abductors stopped at the truck stop for gas. His yelling attracted the attention of the attendant and the kidnapers fled from the area.

Ontario police said the case has been turned over to West Covina police for disposition. The two youths have been booked in Los Angeles Juvenile hall.

Two Cucamonga men were believed beaten and stabbed by a group of other men in the old northtown area of CUCAMONGA Thursday night, according to West End sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the emergency room staff at San Antonio Community Hospital reported that two men came in for treatment of multiple stab wounds Thursday about 11:40 p.m. a short time after a fight was reported near 25th and Center Streets in Cucamonga.

Treated for their wounds at the hospital were Jesse Serrano, 24, and his brother Sammie Serrano, 27, both of Cucamonga. Deputies said the brothers refused to cooperate with deputies and did not identify their assailants. Both men were later released from the hospital.

Deputies said that earlier in the evening a number of residents in the area of Center and 25th streets reported a fight in progress. When deputies arrived the fight had broken up and no one was in the area.

Angola railroad taken by MPLA

By The Associated Press

Soviet-supported Angolan and Cuban forces have completed their conquest of the strategic Benguela Railroad across central Angola and pushed their advance to within 30 miles of the southern border of the southwest African country, reports from Luanda said today.

Leaders of the Western-backed National Union (UNITA) repeated a call for guerrilla war against the victorious Popular Movement (MPLA).

The Soviet news agency Tass reported from Luanda, the MPLA capital, that the town of Luso, in east central Angola, fell to the MPLA after heavy fighting and that considerable amounts of equipment and armaments were seized.

Flu, pneumonia taking toll in eastern states

ATLANTA (AP) — The number of deaths from pneumonia and influenza in New England has passed the "epidemic threshold," says the national Center for Disease Control.

The center said 81 deaths related to flu or pneumonia have been reported from the six-state region of Connecticut, Maine, Masschusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Influenza outbreaks in other parts of the country remain at expected levels, the center said.

Rocky sees union chief on energy

MIAMI (AP) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller has paid a brief, unannounced call on AFL-CIO President George Meany and leaders of the nation's construction unions to push the Ford Administration's energy-independence program.

Rockefeller said Thursday he asked for and obtained support from leaders of the unemployment-plagued unions for President Ford's plan for a $100-billion energy investment corporation.

He said he told the heads of the 17 construction and building trades unions that such a public corporation would create 1.2 million new jobs.

Probe underway

Boeing also in on bribery scandal?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as the waves from an international bribery scandal involving Lockheed Aircraft spread across the globe, the government has disclosed it is investigating whether the Boeing Co. engaged in similar activities.

The Securities and Exchange Commission said Thursday it has received information that Boeing "may have made illegal payments to certain foreign government officials in connection with Boeing's foreign operations."

A spokesman for Boeing said in Seattle that the company denies any wrongdoing either in this country or abroad.

Lockheed's board of directors scheduled a meeting today in Los Angeles for discussion of disclosures of international payoffs by the firm. There were reports that two top company executives would resign.

Meanwhile, a business research group said Thursday that about 75 per cent of American companies it surveyed reported pressures to make payoffs to foreign government officials, customers and others.

The Conference Board, an independent nonprofit business research organization, said its study was made of 73 top level executives of representative business firms.

"Cited as the most commonly requested payments are kickbacks and other payoffs to customers and bribes to government officials to overcome red tape," the report said. It said the practice is most widespread in Latin America and the Middle East, with the Far East and Africa "not far behind."

The SEC said in documents filed in U.S. District Court here that Boeing and its president, M.T. Stamper, have declined to turn over information subpoenaed for the probe of possible company payoffs.

The firm asked a U.S. District Court in Seattle for an order to protect its records. The company said it fears the information might be released by the SEC to third parties.

The SEC did not mention amounts or recipients of alleged payments that are the focus of its Boeing investigation.

Feds trying to plug loophole in Medicaid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is trying to plug a loophole in the Medicaid program that allows doctors to turn over their bills to collection agencies, because the practice may be costing taxpayers tens of millions of dollars each year.

A change in regulations, quietly proposed last week, would prohibit doctors and dentists who treat welfare patients from selling their bills at a discount for quick cash to collection agencies, which then submit claims to the government.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare thought it had halted this practice, called "factoring," in June 1974 with rules prohibiting reassignment of claims.

Since then, federal officials said they have learned the practice has not stopped. Rather than reassigning claims, some doctors are giving the collection agency their power of attorney. Government checks then are written out to the physicians but mailed to and cashed by the factoring agency.

An advertisement pitched to doctors on behalf of such a business was published recently in the New York Times, an HEW spokesman said.

The practice can lead to fraud, the spokesman added, because some collection agencies inflate the Medicaid bills they bought from doctors by submitting claims for more visits or more treatments than the patient received.

A former state welfare investigator charged in sworn testimony before a Senate subcommittee last November that factoring had contributed to a $250 million Medicaid overexpenditure in Illinois alone in fiscal 1975.

"Middlemen are taking dollars that were earmarked for direct medical care to the aged and poor," witness John Goff testified.

HEW said its new proposal would "provide additional safeguards against illegal payments in the Medicaid program.

Factoring would be prohibited for any physician, dentist or other individual health professional, and the proposal provides that payments "may not be made to or through a factor or his agent."

The proposed prohibition would not apply to bonafide billing agents or accounting firms, which send statements and receive payments in the named of individual doctors, HEW said.

The spokesman said there was no way of knowing where factoring may be a problem. He also noted that doctors would not have to sell their bills if they received reimbursement promptly. Payments should be made within a few weeks but may be delayed for months, he said.

Medicaid costs the federal, state and local governments more than $12 billion a year and covers about 24 million patients who are on welfare or who have been judged medically indigent.

Nearly 100,000 doctors treated Medicaid patients in 1974 and billed the government for a total of $1.3 billion, or an average of $13,320 each. HEW reported that more than 200 doctors each pulled in more than $100,000 from Medicaid and that one New York doctor alone received about $450,000 that year.

Cop slain, gunman shot dead in siege

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A robbery attempt at a fast food restaurant became a siege which ended in death for a gunman who shot and killed an officer answering the alarm, authorities said.

The gunman, who wore a ski mask, held a restaurant employe hostage for 5½ hours Thursday before taking his own life, investigators reported.

The hostage, assistant manager Ann Catherine Modlin, 21, of Agoura, was released unharmed.

Detectives said officer Zlatko Sintic, 33, was shot fatally as he and other officers went to a McDonald's restaurant in a Northridge shopping center to answer a silent alarm.

The policeman was felled as he approached the building, hit by three shots from inside, witnesses said. One restaurant employe was wounded when the gunfire erupted. Doctors said Jesus Rono, 43, was listed in satisfactory condition after surgery at Northridge Hospital.

The gunman, armed with a small-caliber pistol, sought refuge in the building's basement after officers arrived, forcing the woman to accompany him.

He talked to members of a Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) team through the woman, and said he wouldn't be taken alive.

SWAT team members fired tear gas into the basement after they saw the hostage flee from a side door.

The body of a man identified as Gustavo Mendez, 22, was found inside. Police said he apparently had taken his own life, firing a single pistol round into his head.

Floating gate flips

SAN DIEGO (AP) — It was supposed to be an event of sorts, the launching of a 90,000-ton tanker from a new $9 million drydock with a floating gate.

It was at the invitation of the National Steel & Shipbuilding Co. that reporters and photographers were on hand Thursday for the launching of the tanker Rose City.

NASCO officials gave the signal, the huge drydock was flooded and the newsmen watched as the floating gate floated — then flipped over and sank in the drydock.

It took workmen and divers five hours of pushing and pulling with workboats and cranes to get the sunken gate righted and pulled out of the way so the Rose City could be floated out for final refitting.

Reagan says he'll disclose more

Financial standing of candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan says he will release some more information about his finances after President Ford issued a financial report putting his family's net worth at $323,489.

Reagan's new report could confirm what public records and other sources already show: Reagan is a millionaire and one of the wealthiest candidates this year.

"There has been no change in my financial situation since" then, he said. He did not say when the new information will be released.

Public records show Reagan owns three pieces of California real estate with a total market value of $2,363,000. And a source close to Reagan described as "pretty accurate" a report by the San Francisco Examiner that estimated Reagan's 1975 earnings at $700,000 from lectures, his radio show and newspaper columns.

Meanwhile, Common Cause, which describes itself as the citizen's lobby, released financial data about nine Democratic candidates. The only professed millionaire among them was Gov. Milton A. Shapp of Pennsylvania, with assets estimated at $2.8 million.

Sargent Shriver listed his total assets at $135,000 as of August 31, 1975, but gave no information on his wife, the former Eunice Kennedy, who is reported to share in Kennedy family trusts.

The Ford financial statement covering the last 10 years said the President's net worth has increased by about $67,000 since he was nominated October 1973 to become vice-president. Most of that reflected increased real estate values on four homes the Fords own or in which they have an interest.

The statement also said the Fords aren't saving any money in their own names despite the President's annual salary and expense allowance. Nessen said the President has purchased U.S. Savings Bonds in the names of his four children.

The figures show the first family paid $56,296 in federal income taxes in 1974 on a taxable income of $128,472. Federal income taxes on that amount of income normally would be higher than what Ford reported. White House aides said they would seek an explanation from Ford's tax accountant but suggested that because the President's income rose by some $55,000 in 1974, he may have taken advantage of the tax law's income averaging provisions.

Ford's net worth was given at $323,489, with liabilities of $1,200 in "general bills outstanding." In 1973, when Ford was nominated for vice president, he listed assets of $261,078, with $4,700 in liabilities.

No net asset figures were discernible in reports filed by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, a Democrat, in his home state. Following the reporting guidelines set by state law, the form gives amounts in terms of "over" or "under" $1,000 or $10,000. No totals of income, assets or liabilities are given.

Wallace lists sources of income including royalties from Wallace Campaign Inc., of over $10,000. He has demanded that his campaign organization pay him royalties for the use of his name on buttons and pictures. The only asset listed is a home in the range of $50,000 to $250,000. Wallace also lists debts to three banks in the range between $25,000 and $50,000.

Before Reagan said he would disclose more of his financial data, Peter Kaye, spokesman for the President Ford Committee, said the question of personal financial disclosure will be a campaign issue.

"We think Reagan ought to supply financial information," Kaye said.

He said Ford has not only disclosed his finances, but also has made public details of his physical examination and has held frequent news conferences and interviews. "We intend to make this an issue, this whole area of openness," Kaye said.

The assets listed for Ford include $90,000 for a house in suburban Alexandria, Va., $90,000 for a condominium at Vail, Colo., $30,000 for a house in Grand Rapids, Mich., which the Fords now rent, and $2,000 interest in a vacation cabin in South Branch township, Mich.

The statement reported $1,239 cash in banks, $12,973 worth of securities and life insurance policies with a cash value of $9,901. In addition, Ford has $53,701 in the congressional retirement fund.

The largest listed holding of securities was $9,031 in debenture bonds of the Ford Paint and Varnish Co., which once was owned by the President's father.

Shapp has disclosed estimated assets for 1974 as $2,812,096. Income in 1974 for Shapp and his wife was reported as $213,349, on which he paid $34,896 in federal income tax.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter has disclosed his and his wife's assets as of Dec. 31, 1974, as $588,698. This includes his peanut farm and Carter's Warehouse, both in Plains, Ga.

Carter reported adjusted gross income of $97,334 for 1974 on which he paid $26,153 in federal income tax.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., in a statement of assets as of April 1, 1975, listed $258,000. He also reported taxable income of 1974 of $62,678 and income taxes of $14,678.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., has revealed his assets at the end of 1975 as $199,000. He says his income for the year was $54,608 and he paid federal taxes of $16,549.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., has reported assets as of May 20, 1975, as $188,775. He lists joint income for himself and his wife for 1974 as $74,608 on which $20,212 in federal income tax was paid.

Shriver, in addition to listing holdings of $135,000 as of Aug. 31, 1975, reported taxable income of $127,054 for 1974, on which $41,041 in federal taxes was paid.

Debunking historical fairy tales

Honor heroes—not legends

By VIRGINIUS DABNEY

As a practicing historian I am fascinated and not a little dismayed by counterfeit history — a tendency during the Bicentennial Year to twist history to meet poular concepts or to cash in on sensational revelations about American Patriots that are unsupported by historical evidence.

At least two such histories, Gore Vidal's "Burr" and Fawn Brodie's "Jefferson" have already been published. Both met a storm of protest from historians and scholars. And perhaps other historical travesties may be anticipated during the Bicentennial.

Indeed, counterfeit history has frequently produced heroes and heroines whose reputation for patriotic achievement far exceeds the recorded events.

I had reason to observe this in editing "The Patriots," a book commissioned by the U.S. Bicentennial Society, commemorating 50 great American Patriots whose actions contributed meaningfully to the birth of our nation.

After long and painstaking study of their lives and their real contributions to the Revolution, it became necessary for the sake of historical accuracy to omit the biographies of three patriots whose reputations were unsupported in fact or were the product of popular enthusiasm growing over the years.

Paul Revere is the most conspicuous of those omitted. His name is a household word and his "midnight ride" is often cited as an event of epochal significance.

Yet the fact is that Revere never completed his famous ride to alert the residents of Concord, Mass. He was captured by the British before he even got to Concord. Moreover, the revolutionists at Concord had already been warned by the lanterns in the tower of Boston's Old North Church before Revere jumped into the saddle.

Indeed, Revere's undying fame demonstrates the power of a good press agent, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, who immortalized him in the lines: "Listen, my children and you shall hear Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere." The poem was written in 1863 almost a century after the events it purports to describe.

Few are aware of another event in Revere's Revolutionary career. He was a leading participant in a disastrus fiasco, the Penobscot Expedition of 1779 when the Americans fled ignominously before a much smaller British force. Revere and other officers were subsequently courtmartialed. He was finally acquitted "with equal honor as the other officers in the same expedition."

Even so, Revere was an ardent patriot who fought for independence, took part in the Boston Tea Party and risked his life in the attempted ride to Concord. He was one of our greatest silversmiths. But he was not the transcendent hero many have thought him to be.

What of Betsy Ross and the long-held belief that she made the first American flag? This again, may be counterfeit history. There is no documentary evdence. It was not until 1870, almost a century after the supposed event that her grandson, William Canby advanced the claim. He stated that Betsy Ross stitched the first flag at the behest of George Washington and Robert Morris. While Canby no doubt believed this and perhaps with good reason, historical scholars feel that the evidence is insufficient.

Molly Pitcher, who likewise does not appear in "The Patriots," was the wife of John Hays, a Continental artilleryman. At the Battle of Monmouth, June 28, 1778, the day was scorchingly hot and Hays and others were overcome. Molly carried pitchers of water from a nearby well to the parched and gasping soldiers. Although her real name was Molly Hays she was known thereafter as Molly Pitcher. She also helped to serve her husband's cannon when he succumbed to heat. Molly's performance was altogether admirable but it hardly seems sufficient to warrant giving her a place among 50 foremost patriots of the Revolution.

Nor was Molly's heroism unprecedented. It was not uncommon for women in the Revolutionary War to accompany their husbands to the battlefield. Margaret Corbin, the only woman honored by burial in the West Point cemetery, also carried water to soldiers on the battlefield. When her husband, an artillery man, was killed in action, she, like Molly Pitcher, bravely took his place at the cannon.

Another young heroine, Deborah Sampson, enlisted in the Continental Army, wore the uniform and participated in a bloody bayonet charge at Yorktown. Receiving a saber cut and a musket wound on her thigh, Deborah insisted on doctoring her own wounds. Finally, she had to accept treatment by an army doctor who quickly discovered that the brave young soldier was a woman.

The courage of all three women was magnificent. But it did not significantly affect the course of the Revolution. In the judgment of most scholars, isolated acts of courage on the battlefield, whether by women or men, do not by themselves, justify apotheosis among the 50 foremost patriots of the Revolution.

Obviously the honor roll of great American patriots is much longer than the 50 commemorated in "The Patriots." All signers of the Declaration of Independence, for example, merit our veneration for having risked their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor. But the limitation to 50 commentaries made it necessary to omit most of them, as well as a number of fighting men who distinguished themselves on Revolutionary battlefields. All, however, richly merit our remembrance.

It is hoped that history yet to be published during the Bicentennial Year, will also stimulate remembrance, relying upon facts to invoke it, rather than pseudo-history tinged with poetry and lamentably counterfeit.

Psychiatrist feels cancer cure in mind

SAN DIEGO (AP) A Los Angeles psychiatrist says the cures to cancer and other deadly diseases may be all in our minds, literally.

Dr. Barbara Brown, of Sepulveda Veterans Hospital, said Wednesday that most, if not all, physiological activity in the body can be controlled voluntarily.

In other words, a person can tell part of his body to stop making him sick.

"We know that biofeedback procedures generally lower the insulin requirement of diabetic patients," she said.

If the chemicals or physiological processes which trigger cancer and leukemia can be found, biofeedback techniques could be used to control those body functions creating the illness, she added.

Entertainer seeks legal separation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Carol Lawrence has sued her husband, singer Robert Goulet, for legal separation.

Miss Lawrence, 43, cited irreconcilable differences in her Superior Court suit filed Monday. She said she has been separated from Goulet, 42, since New Year's Day.

They were married Aug. 12, 1963 in New York and have two sons, aged 9 and 11.

California solons urge job project

LOS ANGELES (AP)—California's two U.S. Senators have called upon President Ford to reverse his position and sign a public works bill that would create 600,000 jobs.

In a joint news conference here Sunday, Democrats Alan Cranston and John V. Tunney urged Ford to support the $6.1 billion bill that would create 75,000 jobs in California.

But Ford, on a weekend campaign jaunt in New Hampshire, repeated his opposition to the bill on the premise that "government-sponsored jobs have not solved America's unemployment problems and never will."

Ford's position, Tunney said, "crystalizes the ideological differences over the problem of unemployment—do we want jobs or the dole in this country?"

Firm asks closing of all its stores

NEW YORK (AP) — W.T. Grant Co. has requested court permission to close the rest of its stores, but the move has been challenged on behalf of 40,000 stockholders.

The decision to close, announced at a U.S. District Court hearing here Wednesday, was prompted by pressures from the company's creditors. The closing comes 70 years after the variety store chain was founded.

Since Oct. 2, the company has closed 715 of its 1,074 stores and laid off about 50,000 of 65,000 employes in an effort to cut expenses.

SAVING STEPS — A vanity added to a girl's bedroom corner saves many steps in the morning or before retiring, eases traffic in bathroom for larger families. Framed with 2 by 2-inch western wood, the vanity blends with wall paneling of 1 by 6-inch resawn cedar. Even though extensive plumbing is not required, the best location for a new vanity is on the wall backing a bathroom, so that existing plumbing can be utilized.

Take precautions installing fireplace

Home and garden

Tempted to install your own fireplace? How about one of those new free-standing models to take the chill out of the rec room?

Watch out, advises Robert A. Pellettier, a fire safety expert. "It is not a job for a weekend handyman; those installations require skill and planning.

"Tragedy can result from the improper installation of free-standing fireplaces or the old-fashioned wood-burning stoves which are now on the market in large numbers," says Pellettier.

His advice is to have the unit installed by professionals. But if a homeowner decides he can put in the unit by himself, he should try to buy a quality product — "the extra cost is worth it" — and should heed the manufacturer's directions.

"One of the problems associated with free-standing fireplaces and stoves is that virtually every roadside stand is selling them and the salesperson often fails to point out — or doesn't even know — the basic safety requirements for installation," he claims.

"Most local fire codes, for example, are very stringent about the venting of fireplaces and stoves. And for good reason. Poor venting can fill a house with deadly carbon monxide fumes; it can also start a fire at the point where the flue passes through the ceiling or roof," Pelletier warns.

Some initial safety tips on installation include these:

Do a lot of checking in advance. Look at the manufacturer's recommendations; inquire about appropriate fire codes; be certain your room has plenty of clearance for the unit between floor and walls to allow for safe heat radiation.

Do not plan on venting through an existing chimney without getting an expert's advice. It is generally not recommended that more than one stove or fireplace be connected to a single flue.

Consider the kind of fuel you will burn. For example, if you want to use coal, you will require a grate and bigger flue than necessary for other fuels.

If you plan on a factory-built chimney for your fireplace, be certain that it has been approved by a recognized testing laboratory.

"There is no doubt that these units can be attractive, as well as practical in helping to cut heating costs somewhat," says Pelletier. "But if installed by amateurs, they can be deadly."

Once in place, a free-standing fireplace requires the same care in its use as does a normal fireplace. Pelletier recommends:

Do not burn too many logs or other fuel at one time. Statistics show excessive fuel is the leading cause of home fires whose origin is in a fireplace.

Never attempt to start or re-kindle a fire with a flammable liquid. The flash-effect generally is too great to be contained in the unit.

Always use a tight-fitting screen mesh to contain sparks and embers.

Before disposing of ashes place them in a closed metal container until all cinders have cooled.

Zero marker

The zero milestone is a small marker situated just south of the White House in Washington. It marks the beginning of all our national highways and all distances are measured from this spot.

Gardeners check list

To make lovely blue hydrangeas from your pink or red blooming plants, begin regular applications of iron or aluminum sulphate now. These applications must be made monthly during the blooming season.

If they are not destroyed now, mites will prevent boysenberries and blackberries from opening evenly. Consult your nurseryman for a spray program during February that will insure a good crop later in the year.

Sharpen your tools now before the big spring outdoor season begins. Hedge and prunning shears should be sharp so they don't bruise the bark of limbs you prune — and because it makes prunning easy.

The temptation in planting annuals is to plant too many different things and not enough of one thing. Plans beds for annuals so you have a real display of zinnias or marigolds or petunias.

Cleaning up a rose garden after it's been pruned is an important step in rose culture. Be sure all fallen leaves have been raked out of the area and burned. Left where they fall, they provide potential hiding places for pests and are carriers of last year's fungus problems.

States adopt own flagship

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The brigantine Explorer has been adopted by Oregon and Washington as the official flagship to represent the states at bicentennial activities at Philadelphia and New York.

The 150-foot wooden Explorer operated as a survey vessel along the Pacific Northwest and Alaska coasts until 1939 when it was transferred to the National Youth Administration as a training ship.

Here's the Answer

Q. — I'm getting ready to fix a few holes in a blacktop driveway. The driveway has a slightly textured surface, as though tiny bits of gravel had been mixed in with the original blacktop material. How can I get the same effect with ordinary blacktop?

A. — By making the mixture of the kind you correctly guessed was put down originally. But there is no need to do your own mixing. Many building supply dealers sell a type of cold-mixed asphalt which contains pieces of gravel. Pour it into the holes and tamp it down. It is best to make each patch about one-quarter of an inch above the surrounding surface. It will be worn down smooth by the auto traffic over it.

Q. — How can I estimate the number of tiles that will be needed for covering my kitchen floor? I intend to use 9 by 9-inch tiles.

A. — Determine the approximate square footage of the room. Multiply by two to get the number of tiles needed. Thus, if a room is 10 by 10, the square footage is 100. You will need 200 tiles. Or you can take the room measurements to your tile dealer, who has a chart showing the number of tiles needed. By the way, the formula just given to you takes into consideration the extra tiles you will need for cutting and fitting around irregularities.

Q. — How deep should drain tiles be placed in the ground? They will run from the downspouts on the house to a dry well.

A. — At least 1 foot in depth. Be sure the tiles are slanted slightly in the direction of the dry well.

---

Q. — In removing the cleanout plug in the U-shape pipe under the sink, does the water have to be turned off?

A. — No. But be sure to place some kind of container under the plug as you remove it, otherwise the water in the pipe will run out on to the floor.

BROTHERLY RACE — John Richards, left, a Democrat running for sheriff in Hunt County, Texas, finds himself with a bit of friendly competition as his brother Benny will run for the same office as a Republican.

Brothers vying for position as sheriff

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Johnny Richards, 36, was surprised when he read that his kid brother Benny had filed as a Republican candidate for Hunt County sheriff.

It's not that he thinks Benny, 33, would make a lousy sheriff. In fact, it's just the contrary.

The problem is that Johnny himself had jumped into the same sheriff's race a few days earlier as a Democrat.

"I don't think either one thought the other was serious, but they both were," said an acquaintance of the two candidates.

Since Benny is unopposed in the Republican primary, the two will clash in the general election if Johnny is chosen as the Democratic nominee.

He has six opponents, including the incumbent.

"We got our wires crossed," grumbled Johnny, "and it really shocked me. To tell you the truth, I didn't think Benny would run on a Republican ticket. I sure wouldn't."

Responded Benny, "Most of the time I do vote Republican, but I vote for the individual, the man I think can do the best job. And that's the way it should be."

Both are launching maiden runs for elective office and while disclaiming any animosity, they both say they are serious about winning.

"We just came up wanting the same job," said Benny, who for the last 12 years has worked for an international electronics firm.

"I just don't jump into things hurriedly," he said. "I've thought about it. I want it. I'm after it. I've got the desire and I'll get it. I'll do everything I can to win."

Johnny is just as adamant, just as confident, although his campaign efforts are presently hampered by the finishing touches on a law enforcement degree he's getting at East Texas State University.

As a former patrolman, deputy sheriff, security guard and military policeman, Johnny is the candidate of experience. He is married and has four children.

Lincoln had Confederate bill in pocket when killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mystery box containing the things Abraham Lincoln carried in his pockets when he was assassinated was opened Thursday, and the most intriguing item turned out to be a $5 Confederate bill.

There was no other money in the box, opened at a ceremony at the Library of Congress. Other items were favorable newspaper clippings about Lincoln and the conduct of the Civil War, two pairs of eyeglasses, a penknife and a large handkerchief embroidered "A. Lincoln" and what appeared to be a watch fob.

At the Lincoln Memorial, President Ford placed a wreath to honor Lincoln on the 167th anniversary of his birth.

Ford said the nation honors Lincoln "for the force of his faith in America and in the people" at a time when the worth and the will of the government was being questioned and assailed.

The box containing the Lincoln items has been at the Library of Congress for years.

No one knows who removed the items from Lincoln's pocket after he was shot by John Wilkes Booth on the night of April 14, 1865. He died the following morning in a house across 10th Street from Ford's Theater, where he had been attending a play.

For many years the box was in the possession of his son, Robert Todd Lincoln, and thereafter in the keeping of Robert Lincoln's daughter, Mrs. Charles Isham.

The items were in a box the size of a small shoebox, which bore a label reading, "Handed to the librarian by Mrs. Charles Isham ... To be permanently held in the librarian's safe, Oct. 28, 1937. Strictly confidential."

Librarian Daniel J. Boorstin said he does not know why none of his predecessors opened the metal box.

Boorstin said he thought it appropriate to unveil the contents on Lincoln's birthday in the Bicentennial year.

He has been librarian for only a few months and said he found the box in a vault which adjoins his office.

The items are being placed on public view in the great hall of the Library of Congress.

One pair of eyeglasses was a folding one, contained in its own small case. The other pair apparently had been broken; one temple piece was held by string.

One letter to the editor of an unidentified newspaper included a quote from a letter to Horace Greeley from John Bright, a British reformer who supported the Union cause.

"It is not because they believe Mr. Lincoln to be wiser or better than all other men on your continent," Bright wrote, "but they think they have observed in his career a ground of purpose and patriotism which knows no change and does not falter."

L.A. council will be highest paid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Municipal legislators in Los Angeles will become the nation's highest paid elected city officials when a two-step, 10 per cent salary increase goes into effect.

The City Council voted 10-4 Wednesday to okay the raise.

A group of 40 senior citizens opposed the raise, and some city officials, including Mayor Tom Bradley and City Atty. Burt Pines, have indicated they would forego their raise.

The pay hike's first step will take effect when the ordinance is published, and the second step will come July 1.

The raise will up the salary for a city councilman from $30,000 a year to $33,000, and the mayor's salary will jump from $50,000 to $55,000.

Prison for pro burglar backed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A bill requiring mandatory prison sentences for professional burglars has gained the support of California Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger.

Younger joined Los Angeles Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp and Asst. Police Chief Darryl Gates Wednesday in supporting the bill by state Sen. Dennis Carpenter, R-Newport Beach.

The bill would generally not affect juveniles, who make up about one-half of all burglary arrests.

It would require mandatory prison sentences for persons with two prior burglary convictions.

A spokesman for the attorney general said "the general feeling of people in law enforcement is that county jail and probation are not appropriate" for professional burglars.

Stanford students seek Angela

STANFORD (AP) — Black activist Angela Davis has expressed interest in accepting an invitation from Stanford University students to teach a course on Marxism.

The university announced Wednesday that the proposed philosophy course was titled "The Female Condition: Search for a Marxist Approach" and would be available to 50 to 100 students.

Miss Davis, head of the National Alliance Against Racism & Political Repression, currently holds a one-year appointment as guest lecturer at the Claremont Colleges.

The Stanford student senate voted 12-3 Tuesday to invite her with two other guest teachers — Ernest Mandel, a Marxist economist from Belgium, and Claude Steiner, a radical clinical psychologist from the San Francisco Bay area.

Former President Richard Nixon was sent a preliminary letter asking him if he was interesed in guest teaching here, but students said he did not respond.

40-hour week for teachers

OXNARD — The Oxnard school board has approved an eight-hour day and 40-hour week for teachers, despite the strong protest of the teachers.

By a 4-1 vote, the board gave final approval Wednesday night to a regulation requiring the teachers to be at school for eight hours, which includes a 30-minute lunch period.

Teacher spokesmen challenged the eight-hour day, saying some teachers work longer than eight hours anyway, doing schoolwork at home.

Teacher Hal Wasserman warned that if the board adopted the 40-hour week policy, "I won't give you a second over 40 hours."

CREDIT SNOOPING

NEW YORK (AP) — American Express, which has more than six million credit card holders around the world, says it supplies information about customers' finances to government agencies and private attorneys.

American Express officials, testifying this week before a hearing of the federal Privacy Protection Study Commission, said the company provides the information only in response to subpoenas and does not notify the cardholders when they are being investigated.

S.D. County fights caseload

Lawyers play judge, cut costs

VISTA (AP) — The judge on the bench in 92 days of court sessions was really a lawyer, not a judge, but Robert G. Helm of Escondido wants to help out. He is one of 15 attorneys assigned regularly without pay to help the overcrowded court docket.

It is a highly successful and money-saving arrangement, in the view of Superior Court Judge F.V. Lopardo.

The arrangement, which California law allows, is a permanent part of justice in the district which covers northern San Diego County. There are only three real judges serving the area bigger than most California counties and including 11,000 more people than in all of Santa Barbara County.

"We would not possibly handle the steadily increasing caseload without the assistance of the volunteer services of the judges pro tem," Lopardo says. He picks them on the basis of past trial and general experience.

Since he instituted the plan in 1973, the volunteer judges have sat in on 1,347 default dissolutions, 495 civil cases involving orders to show cause and 366 other civil cases.

The attorneys gain valuable experiences and taxpayers save at least the salary and costs of a fourth judgeship, says Lopardo.

Litigants agree first to let an impartial attorney hear their case.

900 affected at Citrus College

Vets angry as govt. audit shuts off funds

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Nine hundred of the 2,400 veterans attending Citrus College under the Veterans Administration's educational program have been denied their benefit checks since December.

On Dec. 10, these students were notified by the Veterans Administration that their checks would cease" while their school records were examined."

According to Larry Evans and Robert Devine, affected sutdents and spokesmen for the Citrus College Veterans Association, more than half of the affected veterans have had their records cleared, but still have received no checks.

According to Evans and Devine, much of the confusion at Citrus seems to come from conflicts between the college and the VA over registering and recording procedures.

But Evans said "Citrus is just the first college to be affected by the government's new program of cutting off benefits while the college records of veterans are audited.

"However, we've been told by the VA that veterans attending other colleges will be faced with the same cutbacks.

"We feel that it's illegal to deny us benefits which had already been approved while they decide to audit the college's records."

The conflict at Citrus College seems to be in two major areas.

Devine said that one issue is that in some vocational courses, students are not given a specific letter grade, but take the classes on a pass-fail basis. The VA has refused to recognize these units as completed courses.

Another area of confusion, the spokesmen said, is that veterans have been encouraged to take certain vocational courses for up to four semesters because of the amount of training needed.

"Veterans have been told by the instructors at Citrus that upholstery class could be taken for four semesters because it was impossible to learn the work in one," Evans said.

"Not one student who was in his fourth semester has been billed for $1,237.50 by the Veterans Administration which claims he was overpiad for previous classes."

"This guy has been forced to sell his house to meet his bills."

The veterans association has retained Scott Tepper, an attorney from Century City, who represented Navy men whose re-enlistment bonusus were arbitrarily cut off.

Trotter and the students are now considering filing a suit against the Veterans Administration to stop the procedure of cutting off benefits without justification.

According to Trotter, "These guys were enticed to come to Citrus through advertisements and encouragement. The school has benefited heavily from the funds.

"But the college was notified last March by the VA that its records were not in compliance with what was required by the government.

"By December, Citrus College was ordered by the government to show cause as to why the regulations had not been complied with.

"But nothing was done and now the veterans are suffering."

Spokesmen for the veterans concede that a very few of the men may have abused the program.

"A few guys may be trying to rip off the government, but a majority are older, married men with families who genuinely want a good education," Devine said.

"Many of us have been forced to rop out of school this semester. We simply couldn't keep going without the checks."

The veterans say that local federal representatives have been either unwilling or unable to help them, but that they have received support from local American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars groups.

No college officials were available fro comment because the college is closed until Tuesday for legal holidays.

Lloyd hits a new campaign trail: the garbage route

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

How can a congressman become better acquainted with his community than by collecting its trash?

That's what Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., did today in southwest Pomona.

Lloyd, whose district extends from West Covina to Cucamonga, is conducting a series of district "work-day" programs to meet people at a working level.

He previously worked at a tire shop in Covina and as a disc jockey at a Pomona radio station. He next plans to work on an assembly line at the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. plant in Ontario.

Lloyd met some unbelieving residents as he went down streets and alleys today dumping barrels of trash into the back of one of Pomona's garbage trucks.

"Several residents just didn't believe that a congressman will go out and do this work," he said.

"They asked why I would work like this, and I told them to learn what laboring people are doing. I get an enjoyment when they realize that I am a congressman"

Lloyd said he is keeping a campaign pledge to bring government back to the people. "You get to talk to the people you are working with and they will tell you what they think."

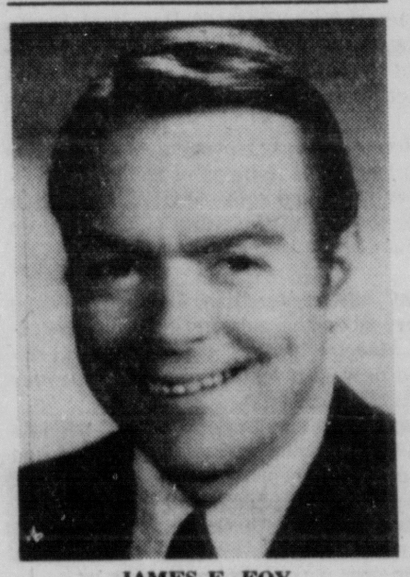
Stopping for a coffee break at 8:30 a.m., Lloyd had worked up a "little sweat" for his morning labor. He started at 6 a.m.

But his co-workers said the legislator was keeping up with the job and not "dogging it."

Joe Torres, the truck driver, said he was driving at his normal pace. "He (Lloyd) is holding up real good. We are not having to slow down."

Regarding Pomona's trash, Lloyd said there are a lot of beer cans in the trash barrels. "We have collected everything from rabbit manure to an old mattress. But the toughest part is dumping those garbage cans which contain water left by the recent rains."

Lloyd emphasized that he receives no pay for his volunteer work. "I want to show that working with your hands is dignified."



JAMES E. FOY

TV exec to address Press Club

James E. Foy, editorial director for KNBC-TV in Los Angeles, will be the speaker at the dinner meeting of the Press Club of Southern California Feb. 20.

The dinner is scheduled at 7 p.m. at Henri's Restaurant on Central Avenue in Montclair.

Foy, whose familiar opening "I'm James Foy and this is a KNBC editorial" has been heard on Channel 4 newscasts since 1969, will address the club members and their guests on "The Editorial Program and Policies at KNBC Television."

The editorials he has written and presented during the last six years won Golden Mike Awards for Channel 4 in 1972, 1973, 1974 and 1975.

The meeting is open to guests, and reservations for the $5 dinner meeting may be obtained by calling Mary Remillard, 622-1201.

Three cyclists hurt in area accidents

A bicyclist and two motorcyclists were injured in three valley area accidents Thursday.

The bicycle rider suffered leg injuries Thursday afternoon when his bike and a car collided at East End and Holt avenues in Pomona.

The rider, Upendra J. Shukla, 21, of Pomona, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where his condition today was termed good.

Police reported that the accident occurred as Shukla turned left in front of a car driven by Antonio G. Castro, 26, also of Pomona.

A 39-year-old Chino man was injured Thursday night when he lost control of his motorcycle on Seventh Street and crashed after skidding across Benson Avenue in Upland.

James Ellis of 4418 Lugo St., Chino, was transported to Kaiser Hospital in Fontana by ambulance where he underwent treatment for multiple injuries. He was later released.

A 21-year-old Ontario man was injured Thursday when a motorcycle collided broadside with a pickup truck in the intersection of Park Street and Laurel Avenue in Ontario.

Donald Ray Squyres, of 512½ S. Euclid Ave., Ontario, was treated for multiple injuries at Ontario Community Hospital and later released.

Police said Squyres' motorcycle crashed into the side of a pickup truck driven by Narcisco Castro Teniente, 39, of 619 W. Park St., Ontario. Teniente was not injured in the accident but was arrested and booked in West End Jail for investigation of driving while under the influence of a drug. After the booking, Teniente was given a citation and released with a promise to appear in court.

Police kill wrong dog in race to find nipper

Pomona police shot and killed the wrong dog late Thursday night in their attempt to locate the German shepherd which earlier had bitten a 15-year-old boy.

The shooting occurred at 457 E. La Verne Ave. where the suspected dog reportedly had taken up residence beneath the house during last week's heavy rains. Police had gone there in an attempt to confine the dog for observation of rabies and spare the biting victim, Robert O. Fee, the painful series of rabies shots.

Officers said they had been told that the dog which attacked the youth as he rode his bike late that afternoon had run beneath the home of Charlie Chatman at the La Verne Avenue address.

They said the animal refused to come out, despite their coaxing, and that it was decided it would be safer to shoot it than for a policeman to go beneath the house and pull it out. The dog was shot with a .22-caliber rifle.

But identification of it as the boy's attacker was uncertain and a couple of hours later a dog positively identified as the one which had bitten the victim was located in the 400 block of W. Orange Grove Avenue. That dog was caught and taken to the Humane Society of the Pomona Valley shelter for observation.

The victim had been bitten on his arm, chest and thigh and was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Fontana. He was told there that unless the dog which bit him was found by Saturday, he would have to undergo the treatment for rabies.

Sticky business

Alabama to Florida letter takes detour —through Pomona

A letter mailed from Eufaula, Ala., to Jacksonville, Fla., was delivered to a Pomona resident this week in a series of postal goofs that somehow kept the letter in the same family.

Alma Spencer of 2413 Lovejoy St. was astonished Tuesday to receive a letter earmarked for her sister, Mrs. Mary C. Nelson in Jacksonville, and sent by her mother, Mrs. Josh Spencer in Eufaula.

In the same mail she got a letter addressed to herself from her mother. She figured that was fine, but how did she ever get the mail that was supposed to go to her sister?

Pomona Postmaster Warren Lynch reconstructed what probably happened from his knowledge of postal procedures and his discussion with the carrier who delivered the letter.

Warren said the two letters must have gotten stuck together after they were mailed in Eufaula.

Then the postal computer which cancels stamps for that Alabama city must have missed the two letters.

In sorting, the top letter was directed to Pomona, while the letter destined for Jacksonville and riding "piggyback" behind the top one was missed.

When it arrived in Pomona, still stuck together, the top letter was dispatched to the local carrier. The carrier, noticing that the stamp missed voiding, canceled it himself, and then came upon the second letter.

Noting that the name of the sender was the same in both cases he delivered both letters to the same Pomona address.

Glauthier named to board

Theodore Glauthier of 623 N. San Dimas Ave. has been elected chairman of the Los Angeles County-San Dimas Civic Center Authority.

Glauthier has been a member of the board since 1972.

The authority board of directors acts as "landlord," leasing the City Hall and Community Building to the City of San Dimas and the library to the county. When the revenue bonds are repaid after the 30 year period, ownership of the buildings will revert to the city and county.

County reform long overdue

The Public Commission on County Government created a year ago to study the structure and operations of Los Angeles County government has published its findings and recommendations that radically restructure county government.

The commission's findings represent what is said to be the most searching look to date into the much-criticized operations of Los Angeles County government, especially at the Board of Supervisor level. The work of the commission was exhaustive and thorough.

However, most of its findings were already pretty well recognized and its recommendations, while they are not exactly revolutionary, will certainly renew the rhetoric on the bigness and expensiveness of county services without really addressing themselves to the solution of either.

The commission found that the Board of Supervisors is impenetrable to the average citizen, that controversial issues are not debated in the public view and that the supervisors operate on the principle of "divide by five" when it comes to deciding how much money should be spent in each of the five supervisorial districts. Nothing new there.

The commission study claims that the county's approach to financial management is disorganized and therefore there is no reason to expect that the rapid rise in county costs will be substantially abated without changes. That was no secret, either.

There is some hope in improving the efficiency in county government, the commission notes, if there is a clear separation of executive and legislative functions.

The commission would have the county charter changed to provide for a county executive who would be elected for four years in a non-partisan election. Also, the supervisors would be converted to a county legislature of nine members elected from newly drawn districts of equal population.

There have been previous efforts to enlarge the Board of Supervisors but each time they were turned down because they would increase costs of government rather than reducing it. There is no guarantee, either, that the new proposal would result in greater economy.

Three out of the five supervisors have reacted negatively to the commission's proposals and therefore there seems to be little likelihood, at this time anyway, that a proposed county charter amendment would find its way to the ballot before November, if then.

We recommend that the public apply whatever pressure is required to convince the supervisors that the matter of restructuring county government deserves to go to a vote of the people. A reform in county government is long overdue.

Once achieved, it might be possible to start whittling on the real problem, the burgeoning costs of county government, a load on the taxpayer which has increased by almost 900 per cent in the past 25 years.

Think on these things

You have to want to survive in order to make it. Where there's a will, there's a way, a right way. Victor Hugo once said that people do not lack strength, they lack will, and he meant an educated will.

When the will is taught to go forward in the right way there are no barriers, nothing to keep us from reaching a star. Great people always have had the will to do something while others are merely wishing. But there must be that strong desire, that determination to make it, to see something worthwhile happen. Wanting is not enough. There has to be something more — the will to win.

The public forum

Uncontrolled giveaways

Dear Editor:

We would like answers to some questions that perhaps we can get through this forum. We have been unable to get them from official sources.

Why is tax money in the form of welfare given to people who neglect their children and destroy property belonging to others? If people on welfare are not responsible for their actions — as we have been told — who is?

Do we, after paying to support these people with our taxes, still have to pay for the destruction they cause? Why was money being paid to this couple for the welfare of their children without checking to see what conditions they were living in?

We are speaking specifically of a frustrating experience we are just going through.

We rented our house on Holt Avenue to a welfare couple with three children. The first we realized we had made a mistake by renting to them was when they started collecting junk and piling it around the outside of the house. We didn't know how bad it was on the inside of the house until the cockroaches started moving out and spreading to other areas.

We did everything we knew to get the couple to clean up the property. They always said that they were going to do it, or made an excuse. They let us inside the house once to spray. Then a chain lock was placed on the door.

A dog, cats and other small animals were locked inside the house over a period of several months. Their waste was only part of the filth we saw.

Last October a man from Childrens Service was sent out by the school to check on the children. Another man came from the Health Department. They worked patiently with this couple for nearly three months, but they did not get any more results than we had.

Finally, two special investigators from the police department were notified, and action was taken. The parents were jailed on child neglect charges and the children were placed in foster homes.

Our Holt Avenue house now is in an indescribable, deplorable condition. We have never seen anything like the filth left inside. The Humane Society took the animals and the fire department posted the house as uninhabitable.

It will take us months of lost rent and hard work to restore it. It seems to us that our tax supported agencies are not supportive of people who pay the taxes, but rather actually help those who do not pay taxes to take advantage of those who do. Foster home care is tax supported, too. So are the jails. There seems to be no end to it. How much longer can we afford this kind of unsupervised, uncontrolled giveaway?

We know all people are not like this family. But we'll probably never again knowingly rent to anyone on welfare. We can't afford it. — Harold and Ioma Ellis, Pomona

NASA's fishing expedition

WASHINGTON — A top space official, who went salmon fishing last year with Boeing bigwigs, tried afterward to award his fishing companions a "wasteful," $200,000 contract.

The inside story is told in confidential memos from the files of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

The memos identify the obliging space official as Jack A. Jones, a quality control chief based in Houston. He was taken fishing by corporate executives during a visit to Boeing's Seattle headquarters.

Another space official, Joseph H. Levine, was included on the fishing trip but played no part in seeking the $200,000 contract for his hosts.

The incident was turned into stark drama when the complainant, James Maxwell, suddenly died of a heart attack after he brought the scandal to the attention of NASA investigators. Friends say his diligence in pressing the investigation helped bring on the fatal attack.

Maxwell was upset because his name was listed as the NASA engineer who had requested the $200,000 contract. The money was supposed to be spent for research equipment that he thought was unnecessary. According to a confidential report, he saw "absolutely no need for this purchase request" and considered it "wasteful to spend (the) money."

It was Jones, not Maxwell, who sought the $200,000 contract for Boeing, the documents charge. He allegedly began pushing for the contract immediately after he returned from the fishing trip with Boeing executives.

The outraged Maxwell complained that the use of his name "implicates me in a violation of law." He died before NASA completed its investigation, which resulted in cancelling the contract. Jones and Levine got off, however, with a mild reprimand.

Footnote: A NASA spokesman confirmed that Jones and Levine were entertained by Boeing on the fishing trip and acknowledged that Jones had sought a $200,000 contract for Boeing after his return. Norman Wynn, one of the Boeing hosts on the salmon excursion, confirmed that it took place, called the affair "insignificant" and hung up on our reporter, Marc Smolonsky. Jones and Levine did not return our calls.

SURVEILLANCE SUBSIDY: When local policemen or prosecutors need special help to spy on alleged criminals, they turn to Uncle Sam for help. During the past seven years, the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) has responded with unusual generosity.

The agency has distributed a staggering total of $160.8 million to support 1,929 intelligence-related projects around the country. The figures were provided to Chairwoman Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., whose Government Information subcommittee is investigating federal snooping.

Approximately $2.5 million dollars was earmarked directly for the "purchase of electronic surveillance equipment," according to the LEAA report provided to Abzug.

Incredibly, $1.3 million of the bugging equipment went to states which either prohibited wiretaps or had no specific laws on bugging.

California, for example, outlaws wiretapping except in unique circumstances. Yet, the federal government gave California authorities $98,596 for sophisticated surveillance equipment.

The California Department of Justice acquired, among other things, ten "beeper" systems, which allow police to follow vehicles at a distance, 15 voice-activated tape recorders, 36 miniature microphones and headsets, and five "intelligence kits" at $2,500 apiece.

Other states which prohibited wiretaps at the time they received their LEAA grants — Illinois Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan and North Carolina — were supplied with body transmitters, auto tracking devices, and other unspecified "technical surveillance equipment."

Even when money is doled out to states where wiretapping is legal, there is little method to LEAA's mad giveaway. Official bugging is legal, for example, in New Jersey. There state authorities spent $206,093 in federal funds to buy eavesdropping equipment to handle 808 authorized wiretaps.

But, the report noted, there was "no correlation between the number of wiretap authorizations and the amount of funds expended for electronic surveillance equipment."

Clearly, LEAA exhibits little control over the local spending and use of the equipment. The report points out, in fact, that 25 states simply refused to provide LEAA with an itemized breakdown for the bugging equipment bought with LEAA money.

Want to pay his rent?

There's a family of four living in a high rise in Chicago. The family has an income of $8,000 a year. But they have to strain to pay the $278 a month rent on that three-bedroom apartment. Will you contribute $100 a month to help them pay their rent?

Oh, yes you will! Last year Congress approved a rent subsidy program under Section 8 of the 1974 Housing Act.

Since January you've been seeing newspaper ads notifying middle-income Americans that they may be eligible for some of your money to help them pay their rent.

We're not yet out from under the absurdity of the much-abused food-stamp program, when along comes this "rent-stamp program," which will tax you to help pay the rent of families earning as much as $15,900 a year!

About 600,000 families are eligible for rent subsidies. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) believes that the rent subsidy should be welcomed because it is a faster, simpler, cheaper way of housing families than previous subsidies for private builders and for public housing construction.

This program, we are told, offers better housing without forcing families to move into public housing projects; indeed, the families need not move at all.

But it'll be no bargain for the average taxpayer who will have to pay the subsidy plus the upkeep for the enlarged bureaucracy which will implement it.

How did Congress sneak another "Section 8" past public scrutiny? It's easy to bury riders in utterly unrelated legislation, most of which the members of Congress approve without a personal reading.

In Minneapolis, when housing officials first offered the rent-subsidy certificates, applicants were lining up at 6 a.m. In Chicago there will be thousands more applicants than certificates, and officials expect some illicit bartering for the documents which are worth to the holder from $5 to $200 a month.

Despite the best efforts of city and suburban authorities to devise crook-proof procedures for allocating the certificates, abuses will occur.

There will be voluminous forms to fill out for both tenant and landlord, and Chicago Housing Authority Director Kenneth Wallace says. "If I were a landlord and someone gave me one of these contracts, I'd tell the applicant to stick it in his ear!"

Similar programs, under way in Minneapolis, San Antonio and Denver, have encountered resistance to the red tape. The Chicago area has been allotted 1,373 certificates with more promised later in the year.

But abused or not, the whole program is obnoxious to taxpayers who earn their pay and buy their food and pay their rent and expect nothing for nothing. And it should sadden us all to see the once-proud American Eagle holding aloft a tin cup.

Just in jest

Have you ever wondered why the drinks you buy at ballparks and football stadiums are sold in paper cups? Take the head of the class if your answer is: The better to make it impossible for irate spectators to throw bottles at the umpires, referees and players.

Also, if you've been wondering what you would save by becoming a member of a car pool, the conservationists have it all figured out for you. If you drive 10 miles to and from work each day, even if you share the ride with only one other person and split the cost, each of you will save at least $120 on gasoline alone. Add to that the savings on oil and wear and tear on your cars and it begins to add up to important money.

But maybe the thing that is puzzling you is: Whatever happened to the folks who used to burn books with which they didn't agree? Well, unfortunately their offspring are still with us. A group of such zealots recently burned $2,200 worth of rock music records.

And if you are wondering how you can tell whether or not you are an Old Timer, test yourself on this: If you can remember back to when radio was in its prime and Walter Winchell was shouting: "Good evening Mr. and Mrs. America and all the ships at sea; let's go to press," you are one.

So why not quit wondering and just rest your weary brains? By reading this column, eventually you will get all the answers.

HEW abuses cost millions

WASHINGTON — On the same day that the House of Representatives victoriously overrode President Ford's veto of a whopping Health, Education and Welfare appropriation, one of its subcommittees issued a report which showed exactly down what rathole the taxpayer's money was going.

The report, written by a House Government Operations subcommittee, disclosed that millions of dollars are lost each year because of fraud and abuse of HEW — and that HEW is doing little to prevent this state of affairs from continuing.

Said the report:

"The department has more than 129,000 full-time employes. However, when the subcommittee investigation began — in March, 1975 — HEW's central investigative unit had only 10 investigators with a 10-year backlog of uninvestigated cases."

More damning was a corollary finding: "HEW officials were unable to supply a reliable estimate of fraud and abuse losses and could not even provide an accurate count of the number of programs the department administers."

The department has known of this condition for a long time. But when a reporter asked an official what had been done about it, the answer was: "We're gearing up to do something about it." That "something," it turned out, was a plan to put an additional 2,200 people on the payroll — in addition to the present 129,000!

When the Senate overrode the President's veto, it was to the accompaniment of tearfully indignant outcries by Sen. Hubert Horatio Humphrey over the callousness of the Ford administration and its lack of concern about people. Well, taxpayers are people, too, and this is what they have had to put up with from Congress in so-called income-support programs:

In the period between 1954 and 1975, federal payments for these programs have increased from $13.2 billion a year to $172 billion a year. In 1954, welfare cash payments were $1.4 billion, whereas in 1975, they were $10.6 billion. Unemployment compensation took $2.3 billion whereas now it is passing the $18 billion mark.

Medicare, Medicaid, Social Security disability and food stamps — programs which did not exist in 1954 — are costing $16.3 billion, $7.8 billion, $9.2 billion, and $5.8 billion respectively, for a total of $39.1 billion.

Of the $172 billion in current federal income-support programs, $2.6 billion goes for public housing (up from $68 million in 1954); $3.4 billion for railroad workers' pensions (up from $585 million); and $65.5 billion for Social Security retirement (up in a decade from $4.4 billion).

The hardhearted ones, therefore, are those in Congress who condemn the taxpayer to work more than three months of the year for the tax collector — before making a penny for himself. And, equally hardhearted is the vast bureaucracy which throws the billions around as if money were confetti.

In a burst of frankness, House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts conceded that a major factor in piling up a majority to override President Ford's veto was the election year spirit in Washington.

But it just may be that Congress, while it lights its cigar with the taxpayer's $100 bill, has misgauged the temper of the country.

I can think of no economist, from left to right, who has not — though sometimes with reluctant double talk — admitted that the billions of dollars spent on President Johnson's "war on poverty" did little or nothing for the needy. In fact, they did considerable harm, since the increased government spending contributed mightily to an inflation which hit low-income groups the hardest.

Picture frame delay irksome

Two weeks ago I ordered two custom picture frames from a valley merchant at a cost of $42.20. I paid for them by check.

The owner gave a completion date of two days. When I went back to pick up the frames I was told to come back the following day.

On that day I was told by the lady who works on the frames that a hair appointment caused her not to be able to complete the frames and to come back the next Tuesday.

On that Tuesday I returned to the store. I was asked to come back on Thursday to allow the frames plenty of time to dry.

On Thursday afternoon I was told they were not complete but to return Friday on my lunch hour and that people would work late Thursday night to complete them.

I returned Friday and was told they were not complete and I must now allow them another week.

In a disagreement that followed I told the proprietor I no longer wanted to do business with him and asked for a refund. He refused.

What can I do? I can't seem to get the frames or my money. — C. N., Alta Loma.

Our contact with the proprietor brought the explanation that a sale had delayed work on your custom frames.

He said your frames were ready and you could either pick them up or one of his employes would take them to you without charge for the delivery.

You chose to pick them up.

More than a month ago I had all the windows of my new home "coated" by a valley company.

Supposedly the work is guaranteed for five years. I have a receipt to prove it, signed by a representative of the firm.

Three weeks after the installation I had to call the firm back because the film on the sliding door was cracked or scratched and the film on the kitchen window was coming off.

The workmen came, glued back the film on the kitchen window and replaced the film on the sliding door.

Nine days later I noted that the sliding door was again defective. The film has two little holes at eye level and several corners on other windows are coming off, including the same one in the kitchen.

I have been calling the firm since then but have achieved no results. It's gotten so that a person who answers the telephone calls already knows my voice.

All I want from the company is to make good the guarantee. — Mrs. R. L., Diamond Bar.

A representative of the firm said that three times a man had been sent out on appointment to do the work but you were not there.

He said it cost the firm $15 each time a man was sent out.

Your response was that twice you found cards left by the repair man but you never heard the doorbell ring, possibly because of family noise and the fact that you live in a two-story house and may have been upstairs.

After we contacted the company, another appointment was made and the film on one of your windows was replaced.

The company owner said other damage could have resulted only from something like gouging or when furniture was moved, as the film was too strong to break otherwise.

There's no changing husband

Dear Ann Landers: I came home from a trip two days early. When I walked into the apartment I found my husband dressed in my best evening gown. He was wearing my fanciest jewelry, also my wig. When I tell you I nearly died of the shock, you can believe it.

Without saying a word, he handed me a column of yours that appeared a few years back. (I never saw it, but obviously he did.) "This will explain everything," he said, and left the room.

Here is the column, but it doesn't "explain everything." Please add some words I can hang on to while I'm trying to keep my sanity. — Marge

Dear Ann: A nice young man was arrested recently because he was wearing women's clothing while sitting in a public park. Someone started a fight with him and he flattened the guy.

As a fashion historian I can tell you that everything women wear today was once worn by males. Even corsets. During the Crusades, when men donned suits of armor they had to wear heavy undergarments to protect their bodies against the chafing of the metal. Christopher Columbus wore bloomers and long stockings. George Washington wore lace blouses and carried a silk handkerchief in his sleeve. He also wore a ribbon in his hair. Men's high heels are not new. They go back to the French Revolution. Even in the bird kingdom the male's plumage is fancier than the female's. The peacock is the best example.

So please, Ann, tell your readers that before they classify a person as "peculiar" they should stop and consider the possibility that he may be a man ahead of this time. —F.H.

Dear Marge: Your husband may well be "a man ahead of this time" but for now you must accept the fact that he is a transvestite.

Some behavioral specialists say all transvestites are practicing homosexuals. Others say they are not — that they get their jollies dressing up, and that's as far as they go.

You offer no information about your husband's habits, his friends, how long you've been married or whether you could tolerate this sort of thing if he dressed up only at home.

I hope you discuss this matter with a therapist before you make any decisions. I'm not suggesting that your husband accompany you for counseling because transvestites aren't interested in changing. The best you can expect is that he will agree not to appear in drag in your presence, if you ask him not to.

Dear Ann Landers: Frequently you advise students to go to their school guidance counselors with their problems. I teach in college. Frequently I hear students speak very disparagingly of their high-school guidance counselors. The most common complaint is that they blab.

If you continue to advise students to confide in their guidance counselors, I hope you will advise counselors to keep their mouths shut. — Disillusioned.

Dear D.: Such betrayal is unconscionable and inexcusable. Any counselor who blabs should be sacked immediately — assuming, of course, that the evidence is conclusive.

Fretting over Friday the 13th

Today is Friday the 13th, so watch your step. Maybe it's already too late. Sorry about that. Get well soon.

Friday the 13th has always had a double whammy because both the day and the number have unsavory history. (We have another loser coming in August, so you can be getting ready.)

Friday comes from Frigedaeg, an Anglo-Saxon word meaning Freyja's Day. She was the goddess of love in Norse mythology, but after that it was all down hill.

The day is considered ill-omened in Christianity because Christ was crucified on Friday. Over the centuries Friday was usually chosen for the execution of criminals, and it became known as hangman's day, giving England of the Middle Ages a long holiday weekend. The day earned the unflattering sobriquet of Black Friday in September, 1869, when Jay Gould and James Fisk Jr. tried to corner the gold market by buying up all the gold in New York City, which was harder then that it is now. The plot made a mess of the financial world in Fun City. A second Black Friday occurred in September, 1873, when the stock exchange took another nosedive, bringing on the panic.

There is also Good Friday and my man Friday, but Friday for the working stiff is payday and the start of the weekend, giving rise to "T.G.I.F." (Thank goodness it's Friday.)

The tradition lining the number 13 to misfortune had much earlier antecedents and has been reinforced since then by any number of catastrophes. Early Roman emperors found it took 13 Christian martyrs to fill the average pride of lions. A trireme of the King of Syria set sail with a crew of 13 in 182 B.C. and was never seen again. The search has now been called off. Overdue and presumed lost.

In the Age of Reason the church bell tolled 13 times for the dead, and 13 steps led to the gallows. The fear of the number 13 became so widespread it now has a scientific name: trichinosis. Thank heaven I'm not superstitious (knock wood!)

Playing bridge you will find 13 cards in your hand unless your wife dealt, and 13 is the age of consent in Mississippi. Thirteen is the number of policemen who will pop up when you try an illegal U-turn on a deserted street.

So today ships will not sail from port on Friday the 13th, trireme or no. Hotels have no 13th floor; ships do not have cabin No. 13. Many cities dodge the fateful number for their streets. (Upland defies the cult by having a 13th Street AND a 13th Avenue. And they intersect.)

The real bad luck day for most Americans is April 15. That's when you get devoured by 13 Internal Revenue collectors.

Something about emphysema

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please explain to me what emphysema is and how it affects people. Is it contagious? How is it different from tuberculosis?

DEAR READER — Emphysema is not contagious and is not caused by a germ. Tuberculosis is. However, a person can have both tuberculosis and emphysema.

Emphysema means obstruction of the airways in the lungs. The lung is made up of many tiny air sacs that you can regard as small balloons. These air sacs are where oxygen and carbon dioxide and other gases are exchanged with the blood. To provide oxygen and eliminate carbon dioxide the air in the sacs must be changed constantly.

When we breathe out we expel the air in the tiny sacs and when we breathe in we bring in new oxygen. In emphysema the neck or opening into the tiny sacs is narrowed or constricted. This makes it particularly more difficult to empty the air sacs of old air adequately.

The constantly over distended air sacs results in an over distended chest. A person with longstanding emphysema will have a larger, often barrel shaped chest because of the over inflation. We call this configuration an emphysematous chest. Normally, the chest is flatter, as you can see by looking at your chest again, assuming you do not have emphysema.

The inadequate exchange of air leads to poor oxygenation of the body. The degree of difficulty is directly related to how much old air is trapped in the lungs and how much obstruction to air flow into and out of the lungs there actually is.

Various factors contribute to the obstruction at the opening of the air sacs. Cigarette smoking is a major one.

Poor oxygenation leads to loss of energy and one of the first symptoms of emphysema may be loss of exercise capacity. With mild exertion the victim gets short of breath. As the disease progresses, the difficulty in breathing becomes more marked. Finally these people literally choke to death or spend the last of their days literally gasping for air. There are other complications that can occur along the way, too, which are not any more pleasant.

Emphysema may follow a long history of apparent bronchial trouble with cough and sputum, or any evidence of lung disorder may be entirely absent. Weight loss may be a feature as well as breathlessness and loss of exercise capacity.

Treatment is based on removing any and all irritants to the lungs and first on the list is tobacco. Doctors can help in some cases with other means of cleaning up infections and improving lung function. Some medicines are useful in helping to relax the obstruction in the lungs and improve ventilation. None of these measures by the doctor will be successful unless the patient cooperates by stopping smoking entirely or by avoiding other sources of irritants, such as dust, to which he may be exposed.

Forcing club bid flops

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand from the finals of the team trials shows what happens when a forcing-club system fouls up.

South couldn't open one club and was forced to start proceedings with one diamond. North's two-spade rebid was one of those bids described as fourth-suit forcing and poor South did the best he could by going to two notrump.

Now North finally showed real strength by his jump to four clubs and South jumped to six clubs. He had decided that his partner's bidding was meant to show a void of diamonds. North went to six notrump and West opened a spade.

South won and went after hearts. West ducked the first heart lead, but had to win the second one.

Then West entered into some sort of trance. He had a feeling that somehow or other there might be something wrong with his opponents' bidding. Finally, he led a diamond and East cashed three diamond tricks.

Ask the Jacobys

An Indiana reader wants to know if South should bid with:

♠ Q J 10 8 7 ♥ K J 4 3 ♦ Q 8 3 ♣ Q.

The bidding has gone: One club by West, pass, one notrump, pass, 2 clubs, pass, pass. The game is duplicate and South is vulnerable.

Our answer is a resounding "Maybe". It depends on who is at the table, we would make a bid, but we tend to live dangerously at the bridge table.

Q. "Who played the High Lama in the original film of 'Lost Horizon'?"

A. Sam Jaffe. Remember? If not, maybe you recall him as the bushy-haired senior doctor in the Ben Casey TV series. The 1973 version of "Lost Horizon" with Peter Finch in the lead was filmed too soon. A few people still can't forget Ronald Colman in that role.

Q. "How old would Marilyn Monroe be, if she had lived?"

A. Only one, Barbra Streisand.

Allen Carter hasn't changed

Allen Carter hasn't changed much since his high school days.

A visitor to the Carter home in San Dimas finds the former Bonita great accommodating and softspoken. It's six years since he thrilled valley fans with his long runs for the Bearcats. He doesn't look much different.

It was refreshing to discover that he is still receiving trophies. The latest award arrived just last week.

It was given to Allen by the New England Football Writers for his performance against the Baltimore Colts Dec. 21.

"I was totally surprised," he said. "It came in the mail. My parents picked it up. I was really excited. When I found out I had something from the Patriots, I thought for a moment I had been traded."

Typically, Carter did not remember what his statistics were in the game except that he ran the opening kickoff back 99 yards for a touchdown.

The former Bonita great spent most of his rookie season in the NFL as a kickoff returner. He ran back 32 kicks for 879 yards and a 27.5 average. Used sparingly as a running back, Carter carried just 22 times and gained 95 yards. He also caught two passes for 39 yards.

"I would like to have played more," he admitted. "But my first year was a good experience for me. I think I did pretty good."

Loves warm weather

Carter is back home now during the off season. He spends most of his time with his older brother, "O.C." (for Oliver Cromwell) in Manhatten Beach.

"I'm completely healthy and in good shape," he said. "I run three or four miles a day in the sand and play a lot of racquet ball. I'm a racquet ball freak."

He didn't say much about his plans except that he is concentrating on staying in shape this off-season and plans to return to school to get his Master's Degree (Business Administration) next year.

However it has been learned he is in the process of setting up a series of football clinics for boys here in the valley. But until plans are finalized, little else is known.

Allen expressed surprise that his college coach, John McKay, would leave USC. "I thought he'd be there for years," Carter said. He also said he wouldn't mind playing for McKay with the new Tampa Bay franchise although he expects to return to the Patriots.

"I like the warm weather," Carter smiled. "It was really hard to get used to playing in snow and cold. I'd rather play in California because it's not as humid and if I could pick my team I'd pick the 49ers.

"The Rams and Raiders have a lot of good backs. San Diego's been losing an awful lot the last few years. I think San Francisco can come back faster and the 49ers need running backs."

Had bad luck

Drafted in the fourth round by the Patriots, Allen faced the usual problems of adjusting to the change from college to pro ball.

He also had the bad luck to be on one of only two NFL teams that struck and refused to play their last exhibition game. Arguing and bargaining between the players and club owners had gone all through training camp and the exhibition season.

"It was tough," Carter admitted. "I was trying to make the team and at the same time we were negotiating. It was just hard to concentrate."

Then, after making the team, he didn't play a whole lot.

"I got down on myself at times," he recalled. "I got discouraged. But Sam Cunningham (former USC fullback) helped me. He was kind of like a big brother. He sort of guided me."

Carter roomed with former Oklahoma linebacker Rod Shoate. The two shared an apt. in Attleboro, Mass. Although he got the award for the Baltimore game, he considers the Dallas contest, Nov. 16, his best effort.

"I got to start because one of our starters was hurt," he said. "I felt good and I ran well. Dallas went on to the Superbowl and I related to that."

Asked if there was any negative thing that stood out, Carter didn't have to think about it much.

"One thing that sticks out in my mind," he smiled, "was playing on the specialty teams. It was quite an experience. I remember running a kickoff back one time against the Jets.

"I was heading straight up the middle and all of a sudden I was flat on my back. I never saw the tackler. It's pretty exciting, but I'd rather do without it."

UCLA is peaking

Bad news for Pac-8

By The Associated Press

There's bad — and familiar — news for seven teams in the Pacific-8:

"We're starting to peak," said Gene Bartow.

George Raveling said, "The people who have been criticizing Gene Bartow and the Bruins are going to have to eat crow when the season is done."

Raveling had just watched Bartow's UCLA Bruins dismantle his Washington State basketball team 104-78 Thursday night, and he was duly impressed.

So was Bartow, who frequently this season has shown displeasure with the play of his sixth-ranked Bruins, who upped their record to 18-3.

"We played our best 10 minutes of the year in the first half," Bartow said after the Bruins had built their conference-leading mark to 7-1.

"We were more relaxed and started to make the adjustments we need to win the rest of our games," Bartow added.

Marques Johnson, who scored 19 points to lead the Bruins against Washington State, echoed his coach's comments.

"Since the Notre Dame and USC games we've played very well," Johnson remarked, "and I knew it would come."

The Bruins used a balanced scoring attack to whip the Cougars, with Andre McCarter chipping in 13 points, and Richard Washington and Gavin Smith 12 each.

Although Bartow was pleased with the victory over the Cougars, he said, in the face of what he termed "our biggest game of the year," he doesn't plan to give his team time to relax.

"We start preparing for Washington Friday morning," Bartow said.

The ninth-ranked Huskies, who meet the Bruins in Pauley Pavilion Saturday afternoon, lurk just a game back of UCLA in the Pac-8 standings, and have an impressive 19-2 record in all games.

Thursday night, Washington bombed hapless Southern Cal, which has yet to win a conference game, 93-75.

Seven-foot center James Edwards poured in 20 points to spark the Washington victory, and teammates Kim Stewart and Ken Lombard added 15 points each.

The loss dropped the Trojans to 11-10 overall, and they have lost all eight of their conference outings.

"It's always good to win in Los Angeles because we don't win here too many times," Washington Coach Marv Harshman said after the one-sided victory. "I was suprised they didn't zone us; UCLA gave us fits with the zone last week."

Washington and UCLA square off in a crucial Pac-8 game Saturday, but Washington State and Southern Cal will meet in a game mostly for pride Saturday night.

In Pacific Coast Athletic Association play Thursday, Fullerton State improved its record to 4-2 and moved into a first-place tie with San Diego State via a 67-66 victory over San Jose State. San Diego State dropped a 68-62 decision to Pacific, to lose sole possession of the lead.

In Pac-8 action tonight, Oregon visits California and Oregon State is at Stanford.

West Coast Athletic Association play finds Seattle at Loyola, the University of San Francisco at St. Mary's, and Santa Clara at Nevada-Reno.

Elsewhere in college basketball, Al Weston and Joe Whelton combined for 50 points to lead the University of Connecticut to an 86-79 victory over Lafayette in the opener of a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden. In the second game, South Carolina whipped Fordham 75-65 as Jackie Gilloon keyed an 11-point run at the start of the second half.

U.S. waiting for Hamill

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Canada's Kathy Kreiner edged Rosi Mittermaier by 12-hundredths of a second in the giant slalom today, ending the West German's bid for an unprecedented sweep of the three women's Alpine skiing events. And the United States, blanked through the first three events, waited in expectation of a gold medal performance by Dorothy Hamill at the 12th Winter Olympics.

Miss Hamill, the 19-year-old from Riverside, Conn., took a commanding lead over Dianne de Leeuw, a Californian skating for The Netherlands, into tonight's final leg of the figure skating—the freestyle.

Jan Egil Storholt of Norway won the gold medal in the 1,500meter speed skating and the Soviet Union picked up a gold in the 30-kilometer (18.6 miles) biathlon relay as these Games moved through the next-to-last full day of competition.

And in today's first two runs of the four-man bobsled event, the East German sled piloted by Meinhard Nehmer took the lead with a combined time of 1 minute 49.07 seconds. The best American sled, piloted by James Morgan, 27, of Saranac Lake, N.Y., finished 14th with a time of 1:52.17. The event concludes with the final two runs Saturday.

With only the figure skating remaining among the finals on today's schedule, the Soviet Union led the medal standings with 12 gold and 26 total medals, followed by East Germany with six gold and 15 medals over-all.

The United States was third with two golds and a total of nine, three short of its all-time total of 12 won in 1932 at Lake Placid, N.Y. Prospects for breaking that record dimmed considerably today when Americans failed to crack the top three in the day's first three events.

Dan Carroll's fifth-place finish in the 1,500 and Lindy Cochran's 13th in the giant slalom were the top American finishes.

Miss Kreiner, who hadn't won a big race since 1974, flashed down the icy trail over the Hoadl Mountain course with its 49 gates in 1 minute 29.13 seconds to give Canada its first gold of these Games. Miss Mittermaier took the silver in 1:29.25 and Daniele Debernard of France won the bronze in 1:29.95.

Miss Mittermaier, the personable 25-year-old veteran of the European ski wars, lost her chance to become the first woman ever to capture the three Alpine ski events. She won the downhill Sunday and the slalom Wednesday. Only two men have ever won the triple, Toni Sailer of Austria in 1956 and Jean-Claude Killy of France in 1968.

"There were a lot of people here who may have expected me to win three gold medals, but I am very happy with two golds and a silver," said Miss Mittermaier. "I had not expected anything like this before the Olympics."

Miss Kreiner said, "I attacked the course hard, but perhaps some of the other girls went at it too hard. My coach, who saw me on television, said I went wider and softer around the gates and maybe that was the difference."

Asked if she had regrets about depriving the popular Miss Mittermaier of her third gold, Miss Kreiner said: "No regets at all. I think there was some room in there for me."

Miss Cochran, 22, of Richmond, Vt., completed her 12th-place run in 1:31.33. Mary Seaton, 19, of Hancock, Mich., was 17th in 1:31.58. Cindy Nelson, 20, of Lutsen, Minn., the bronze medalist in the downhill and considered the top U.S. hope for a medal in the giant slalom, wound up a disappointing 21st in 1:32.02. Leslie Smith, 17, of Killington, Vt., rounded out the American contingent in 27th place in 1:34.54.

Storholt, giving Norway its second gold of the Games, won the 1,500 in Olympic record time of 1 minute 59.38 seconds. Yuri Kondakov of the Soviet Union was second in 1:59.95 and Hans Van Helden of The Netherlands was third in 2:00.87.

Carroll, the 31-year-old veteran from St. Louis, was fifth in 2:02.26. Eric Heiden, 17, of Madison, Wis., came in seventh in 2:02.40 and Michael Woods, 23, of South Milwaukee, Wis., finished 23rd in 2:08.77.

Peter Mueller, who won a gold Thursday at 1,000 meters, was scheduled to go in the last pairing in the race but pulled out with what a U.S. official called an emotional letdown. Dan Immerfall, who took a bronze in the 500 Tuesday, was not entered.

"Any of six skaters, including the Norwegians, Russians and myself, could have won it," said Carroll. "I blew it on the 700-meter split when I had my first inside track. I got hit by a gust of wind in the corner and went wide."

Heiden was entered in this race because Charles Gilmore, of Anaheim, Calif., withdrew during the recent qualifying controversy, saying Heiden was better in the 1,500.

Heiden said he was pleased with his seventh. "I was happy I did as well as I did," he said.

OMS loses cycle race

Ontario Motor Speedway has lost the Champion Sparkplug 200 motorcycle race.

The event, which has been run at OMS the last five years, will be held at Laguna Seca Raceway near Monterey this year.

"Champion decided they wanted to move it," said OMS general manager Ray Smartis. "I don't think the event has ever done that well and the sponsor hasn't gotten a great deal of exposure.

It's been my observation that motorcycle racing is more of a participant sport than a spectator sport. They decided to try it elsewhere with a different area to draw from."

According to Smartis, Champion has indicated it may want to sponsor a different event at OMS.

Poly visits Diablo Den

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — It's do or die for Cal State Los Angeles' basketball team here tonight.

The Diablos must beat Cal Poly in this evening's 8 p.m. tipoff at Diablo Den or forget about winning the California Collegiate Athletic Association cage title.

It's a situation Poly faces every time it takes the floor the rest of the season as the Broncos open the second round of CCAA play with a perfect 5-0 record, two games ahead of CSLA and Cal State Bakersfield.

Poly is driving for its first CCAA basketball crown and Coach Don Hogan is anxious to see how his team responds to the pressure of having every opponent go all out to stop the Broncs.

"We're a good basketball team," Hogan says. "But we must remember emotions play a big part in this sport. We haven't been in this situation before and we must appreciate it."

Cal State Coach Bob Miller knows what it is at stake.

"This game is critical for us," Miller said. "There's no more guessing. If we don't win this one, it's all over as far as any championship hopes are concerned."

Poly dealt the Diablos a big setback last week in a thrilling 76-75 overtime victory at Kellogg Gym.

CSLA can't afford another loss in the rematch.

"We still have a chance," Miller says. "But we have to win all our league games and hope somebody else knocks off Pomona."

Up to now, the Broncs, 13-9 overall, have known what games to be emotionally ready for and tonight's contest should be no exception.

Besides the importance of the game in the CCAA standings, the players on both teams know each other well enough through their years of summer ball and during their prep careers.

A good example are Poly's Jack Gamulin and CSLA's Will Roberts. They shared the Most Valuable Player honor in the tough Marine League as seniors.

Gamulin was the third leading scorer in Los Angeles as a senior with a 24.3 average at San Padro High while Roberts was a star at Locke High.

The addition of Gamulin is a big reason why Poly is setting the pace in the CCAA at the halfway point.

With Gamulin, Poly has one of the best one-two scoring punches in small college basketball. His presence gives guard Joe Sills more openings to attack the basket.

"Jack is one of the best pure shooters I have ever seen," comments Hogan, who welcomed the 6-foot-6 junior with open arms when Gamulin transferred to Pomona after his sophomore season at San Jose State.

Gamulin put on a great show Monday night when he pumped in 12 of 16 shots — most from long range — to help the Broncos beat University of San Diego, 102-89.

For the season, Gamulin is shooting at a 53.4 per cent clip from the floor and 72.1 per cent from the foul line. He is second only to Sills in scoring with a 17.5 average.

Garey revamps its cage lineup

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

"We're going to be a different type of team now," said coach Mike Wells of the Garey High Vikings Wednesday after acknowledging that starting guard Kent Jordan had been dropped from the squad for disciplinary reasons. Jordan, Garey's highest scorer with an average of 21.3 points per game, did not play in the Vikings' two most recent games.

"We won't be the kind of free-shooting team that we were before," Wells continued, "but we're bigger now than we were. I think we'll be just about as good. That's not to take anything away from Jordan — he's a fine player — but we're still in good shape."

Wells has moved Gary Carpenter from the forward position to the guard spot, and has inserted Herbert Banks as a starting forward opposite older brother Milton Banks.

In their first game without Jordan, played last Friday, the Vikings saw a 23-game San Antonio League win streak snapped by Chino, 69-60. But Tuesday night, in Carpenter's season debut at guard, Garey roared back from a 45-40 halftime deficit to beat Pomona, 92-75.

Carpenter, a 6-foot-5½ senior, scored 24 points from his new position, and still managed to snare 19 rebounds.

"This is really nothing new for Gary," Wells observed. "This year was the first time he'd ever played with his back to the basket.

"After the game (Tuesday), he said he felt more at home at guard. That's where he's always played and that's where he'll play in college. In fact, most of the colleges are after him because he's such a great passer."

But Carpenter's not bad in the scoring department, either. His average on the season is 19.1 points through 21 games.

And the Vikes have at least three other starters capable of scoring 20 points or more in a game. Center James Lofton, a 6-6½ junior, scored a career high 35 points Tuesday against Pomona. Guard Stanley Webster turned in his high game for the season — 23 points — last Friday. Milton Banks, a 6-4 senior, has been improving steadily and has averaged nearly 14 points per game in his last seven outings. His high game is 21.

Herbert Banks, a 6-3 junior, scored six points in his first starting role Tuesday. He has looked strong on the boards in reserve appearances throughout the season.

With Carpenter, Lofton and the Banks brothers, averaging just under 6-5, the Vikes figure to dominate most teams in rebounding.

Jordan, a real crowd-pleaser with his bombs from just about anywhere on the court, was the "sixth man" on the Vikings CIF 3A championship team in 1975. He scored 22 points to lead Garey past San Gabriel, 55-52, in the title game.

Tonight's SAL schedule will send the Vikings to Claremont, Ganesha to Upland, Pomona to Montclair and Chino to Damien. Garey (10-1) leads Ganesha (9-2) by a single game with Damien (7-4) two games back. Claremont (5-6) has an outside — very outside — chance at a third place finish and a possible playoff berth.

Hacienda League teams have a night off, as do Chaffey High, Ontario Christian and Webb School, but La Verne Lutheran was scheduled to visit CSDR this afternoon at 4:30 and American Christian will travel to Hesperia tonight at 7.

Giants' boss aims at A's

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bob Short, immediately after stepping into the San Francisco Bay Area battle for baseball fans, fired a jocular shot at Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley.

"Charlie called and asked me why I'd want to get back into baseball here. I said I wanted to be successful so I chose a spot where the competition would be minimal," Short said after he and San Franciscan Robert Lurie made an $8 million bid for the San Francisco Giants.

The Giants' ticket office at Candlestick Park reported the volume of phone calls for ticket orders was heavy Thursday, one day after the Short-Lurie bid and the issuance of a court injunction blocking the proposed transfer of the team to Toronto.

No tickets for the coming season, tentatively scheduled to open here April 9 against the Los Angeles Dodgers, have been printed yet. They won't be until at least next week, since the Giants' board of directors has to vote on the offer and National League owners must approve the sale.

The prospective new owners hoped that Horace Stoneham and the Giants' board of directors would act immediately on the offer. The league is meeting Wednesday in Chicago.

Short knows Finley from his days in the American League as owner of he Washington Senators, the team he moved to Texas in 1972. His franchise-shifting days are over, however, he swore Wednesday.

"San Francisco is one of the great cities in the world and baseball is the No. 1 sport, so I can't see why the two cannot be brought together," Short said before flying home to Minneapolis where his wife was hospitalized.

Finley's A's, who won three World Series titles, have gained the upper hand in the Bay Area baseball situation which most of the game's officials, from Commissioner Bowie Kuhn down, consider a bad one. Kuhn, Finley and others have gone on record as saying they're convinced two major league teams can't prosper in the area of some 4.5 million population.

The first place A's drew slightly over one million fans in 1975, showing a profit. The Giants finished third in the NL West, drew barely 500,000 and suffered a $1.8 million loss which broke Stoneham's financial back.

"It's up to the people to prove they want baseball in San Francisco," said pitcher John Montefusco. "If they don't come to the park, we'd be back in the same situation."

Both Lurie and Short said they were confident that with such players as Montefusco, who was the league's Rookie of the Year in 1975, Ed Halicki, Jim Barr, Chris Speier, Bobby Murcer and Willie Montanez, the Giants would be a contender for a pennant this year.

"If I'd had this kind of team when I first came into baseball (in Washington), I wouldn't have failed," Short said.

Palomino tops Avans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Welterweight contender Carlos Palomino, anticipating a title bout this summer, won an unanimous decision over Arizona middleweight champion Mike Avans in their 10-round bout Thursday night at the Olympic Auditorium.

There were no knockdowns in the fight, as Palomino, 145, pounded his way to his 17th victory in 21 fights. The eighthranked welterweight from Long Beach has lost one and fought three draws.

Avans, 151, of Phoenix, dropped to 15-5 with the loss.

Palomino is penciled in to fight the winner of the March 6 bout in London between Hedgemon Lewis and champion John Stracey.

In a preliminary bout, Bernardo Mercado, 212, of Colombia scored a third-round TKO over David Martinez, 204, of Superior, Ariz.

JACK GAMULIN

Jack Gamulin gives Cal Poly big lift

Winning a CCAA championship would mean a great deal to Gamulin, who has never played for a title team during his career at San Pedro and San Jose State.

"I'm really excited about our chances," Gamulin said. "I feel we can do well the rest of the way."

According to the good-shooting forward, there isn't much difference between the Division I and Division II levels.

"Division II is almost at par with Division I," he said. "One of the reasons I transferred to Poly was the schedule. I enjoyed playing teams like Louisville, Houston and Stanford this season and I am looking forward to facing Dayton, South Carolina, Notre Dame and San Francisco next year."

CCAA

Hogan was another big reason why Gamulin selected Poly.

"Don saw me play in high school and I liked him," he said. "I enjoy his personality. He is a friendly person and a good coach."

Gamulin didn't feel comfortable at San Jose State even though he started most of the games as a sophomore.

"Ivan Guevara is a good coach at San Jose," Gamulin explains. "He knows the sport but I didn't feel he was honest with the players. It was a bad situation for me and I knew I was going to leave before my sophomore season.

Gamulin wrote to several schools including Poly and decided to transfer to Pomona.

It's easy to tell he loves the sport.

"I love playing basketball," he said. "I get excited just playing three-on-three in a pick-up game."

Gamulin has always had the ability of putting the ball in the hoop.

Defense is Gamulin's problem area.

"I have to work on it," he added.

Gamulin had to sit out last year after transferring but he felt like part of the team.

"These guys are easy to get along with," Gamulin said. "I really like them. Sills is one of the finest players I've ever seen and it is a pleasure to be on the same team with him."

The son of a tuna fisherman has found a home in Pomona.

BRONCO BUSTERS — Sills was named the CCAA Player of the Week for the second consecutive week and the third time after scoring 86 points in three games last week including 28 against Cal State L.A.

Sills, who is averaging 23.4, and added 46 this week in two games to raise his season total to 514 and 909 in his two-year career.

Poly's big task will be stopping the Diablos' Tommie Lipsey, a true All-American candidate with a 26.7 scoring average. The 6-7 senior also leads the CCAA in rebounding (11.4) and field goal percentage (62.8) and rates third in free throws (81.6). He scored 28 last week.

The other CSLA starters are forwards Greg Green (6-5) and Roberts (6-4) plus guards John Johnson (6-1) and Terry Tate (6-6).

Poly beat CSLA, 59-58, here last year but the Diablos returned the favor in Pomona, 71-70. It means the freeway rivals have played three straight one-point games.

Hayes in form as Bullets win

By The Associated Press

After playing the role of a reserve for nearly a month, Elvin Hayes finally got to start for the Washington Bullets—and it was no sweat. Better yet, it was no pain.

Hayes, who had missed two games and played only parts of seven others because of a ligament strain he suffered on Jan. 20, had no apparent discomfort while helping to deal the Portland Trail Blazers a 92-81 loss Thursday night.

"I felt like 100 percent," said Hayes after scoring 24 points in the National Basketball Association game.

Hayes wasn't overpowering at first—scoring just six points in the first half. But he changed character after intermission.

"I just couldn't get my timing playing a half a game," said Hayes, the onetime NBA All-Star frontcourtman. "It took me a while to really get loose but in the second half I felt as good as I have all season."

Hayes also finished as the Bullets' top rebounder with 16 and blocked three shots.

In the other NBA games, the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the Chicago Bulls 86-83 and the Golden State Warriors whipped the Atlanta Hawks 113-104.

Hayes scored 12 of his gamehigh point total in the third quarter to help the Bullets pull away. With Hayes showing the way, the Bullets increased their 46-40 halftime lead to a 76-57 advantage at the end of the third period.

Cavaliers 86, Bulls 83

Reserves Campy Russell and Foots Walker rallied Cleveland in the second period and the Cavaliers went on to beat Chicago. Jimmy Cleamons, who led the Cavaliers with 17 points, hit one of two free throws with 34 seconds left to make it 86-83. Then Jack Marin missed a jumper for the Bulls with 25 seconds to go and Nate Thurmond came down with the rebound, icing it for Cleveland.

Warriors 113, Hawks 104

Jamaal Wilkes scored 34 points, his NBA career high, as Golden State beat Atlanta. John Drew, who scored 33 points for Atlanta, fouled Phil Smith with 3:01 left in the game. Smith made the free throw to send the Warriors ahead, 100-99, then Golden State scored seven straight points to pull ahead by eight.

Baseball players reject owners' pitch

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's player representatives aren't swinging at the first pitch from owners.

Faced with an implied threat that owners would not open camps without a new basic contract agreement, the players refused to rush into a hasty labor agreement Thursday.

The players met with Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, to receive a report on negotiations and offer their views on what should be done.

"There is no uneasiness at all about spring training," said Miller after the closed-door meeting of the association's executive board. "The board to a man feels this is an unnecessary ploy, this game the owners are playing. It's bad for the image of the game the owners profess to be so concerned about. The players don't feel any pressure whatsoever."

The owners' refusal to open camps without a contract obviously stems from fear of a players' strike similar to the one in 1972, when the ballplayers postponed the opening of the season.

The players, however, have neither a need nor motive to strike this time—since they are sitting in a position of power owing to the Andy Messersmith case. In that one involving the Los Angeles Dodger pitcher, a judge ruled that a player can become a free agent after he plays one season without signing a new contract.

The owners have disputed the ruling for fear of unleashing a flock of free agents at the end of the season. Ideally, they would like to have that ruling overturned, but if that's not possible they insist that the players' association agree to a reserve system the owners "could live with."

"We have no proposals for a change in the entire reserve rules system," Miller said. "Any dispute that exists arises because of the owners' demand for change."

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Phoenix Roadrunners of the World Hockey Association declared Thursday they must sell 7,000 more 1976-77 season tickets by the end of this season or decide whether to move the club to another city or fold.

"The team is going to last through the season. You have my word of honor on that," Karl Eller, president of Combined Communications Corp. and one of five owners of the club, told a news conference. "This is not anything like Denver or Minnesota. There is no problem of meeting the payroll."

But Eller said the owners have lost $6 million and are unwilling to lose more.

BOSTON (AP) — Jockey Joan O'Sea, 51, injured in a freak accident at Suffolk Downs Wednesday, is reported resting comfortably and in improved condition at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Dr. Harold Schwartz, the track physician, said Mrs. O'Shea's "vital signs were excellent." However, her name remained on the danger list on Thursday.

Mrs. O'Shea suffered a subarachnoid aneurism, a ruptured blood vessel, when her head snapped back after she finished third aboard Mister Shorty in the second race Wednesday.

TOWSON, Md. — Joey Berardi held a three-pin lead over Curt Schmidt after the first round of match play in the $70,000 Fairlanes Open Bowling Tournament.

TORONTO — Top-seeded Bjorn Borg beat Vijay Armitraj for the first time in his career 6-3, 6-4 to gain a semifinal berth in the $64,000 men's tennis tournament.

LAGOS, Nigeria — Dick Stockton of New York captured a quarter-final spot in the World Championship Tennis tournament by defeating Lawrence Awopegba of Nigeria 6-2, 6-2.

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — Four striking unions which have delayed the opening of the horse racing season at Golden Gate Fields reached a tentative agreement today, but talks with another union was at an impasse.

Officials for both sides announced that agreements had been reached with unions representing carpenters, painters, operating engineers and horseshoers. However, talks broke off with janitors while negotiations continued with culinary workers.

Ron Supinski, the racetrack's director of public relations, said it was "doubtful" the track would open Friday. The 92-day season was scheduled to open last Monday.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The formation of a new weight classification, the super bantamweight division with a 122-pound limit, was announced Thursday by the President Jose Sulaiman Chagnon of the World Boxing Council.

Sulaiman said the new division was created because some fighters endanger their health trying to make the bantamweight limit and because it will give promoters and boxers a chance to make more money.

The bantamweight limit is 118 pounds while the limit for the featherweight class is 128.

NEW YORK (AP) — The third richest event on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association tour—the $100,000 Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Classic—will be held Sept. 3-5 in Springfield, Ill. The lucrative, 54-hole event will be conducted at the Rail Golf Club, according to LPGA Commissioner Ray Volpe.

Snead in AWSDO lead

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — "You might say," observed broadly-grinning J.C. Snead, "it was a matter of luck."

The luck—which led to a seven-under-par 65 and the firstround lead in the $180,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament—made its appearance moments after Snead plucked a four-leaf clover out of the soggy turf and stuck it in his pocket.

"Now," cautioned the mockserious Snead, "it ain't that I'm superstitious or anything like that. But if I keep it in my pocket I might lose it. I think I'll eat it. That way it can't get away."

Immediately after finding the lucky clover Thursday, Snead saved par from a terrible lie in the bunker—"I had no shot at all; I was looking at six," he said—missed by a scant inch of holing another sand shot on the next hole and then dropped a 148-yard eight iron shot for an eagle two on the next hole.

"That's the first time I've ever holed out a full shot on the tour," he said, grinned again and added: "Luck."

Snead, a raw-boned, rangy nephew of the famed Sam Snead and the defending champion here, held a one-stroke advantage on England's Peter Oosterhuis, Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, rookie Jerry Pate and Curtis Sifford, tied at 66.

The group at 67 included Hale Irwin, Bob Dickson, Mike Morley and Tom Kite.

Morley, Kite and Dickson played the tougher, 7,047-yard north course at the Torrey Pines Country Club. The rest of the leaders were at the 6,667-yard south course. The players shift courses for the second round, then play the final two rounds exclusively on the south.

Scores were exceptionally low in the bright sunshine that brought relief from a week-long storm. The courses, deluged with more than five inches of rain in the last seven days, were still wet and heavy and dotted with puddles of casual water, however, and players were allowed to lift, clean and place the ball in the fairway.

"I'd say it's worth at least two shots a round, being able to get your hands on it and run with it," Snead said.

But Lee Trevino had to work hard for a 71, Billy Casper shot 72 and British Open champ Tom Watson could do no better than 70.

Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller are not competing.

Snead had holed birdie putts of 12 and 20 feet and was two under par when he got it in trouble on the 11th hole. He had it buried, in a downhill lie, in the back of a bunker.

"I didn't think I could get it out," Snead said. "It was an ugly ol' lie and it was one of those that you just crawl in there after it and hit it as hard as you can and hope. Just as I was going in the bunker, I saw this four-leaf clover. I picked it up and stuck it in my pocket."

And he blew the shot out a foot from the cup and made an easy par. He was bunkered on his next hole—and exploded this one only one inch from the stick. Then he holed the 148-yard shot for an eagle. One hole later he dropped a twisting 40-foot birdie putt and went on to play the back nine in 31.

"Just luck," he said.

Canucks enjoy win at Montreal

By The Associated Press

The Vancouver Canucks did what they rarely do...beat Montreal.

The Canadiens also did what they rarely do...lose at home.

And the Kansas City Scouts did what they'd never done before...go unbeaten for four consecutive games.

All those accomplishments — or lack of same — came about as a result of these National Hockey League results Thursday night: Vancouver 6, Montreal 4; Philadelphia 6, New York Rangers 1; Kansas City 2, N.Y. Islanders 2.

In the World Hockey Association, the Minnesota Fighting Saints tripped the Quebec Nordiques and the Houston Aeros stopped the Phoenix Roadrunners 4-1.

Although they beat Montreal once in five games in last year's quarter-final playoff round, the Canucks had done no better than five ties in 30 previous regular-season meetings with the Canadiens over the years. But Ron Sedlbauer scored twice as Vancouver erupted for a 4-0 lead in the first period and handed the Canadiens' only their second home defeat in 28 games.

Dennis Ververgaert also scored a pair of goals while Mike Robitaille started Vancouver's scoring with an unassisted tally at 6:34 of the opening period and Bobby Lalonde got the Canucks' only goal of the final period. Peter Mahovlich scored twice for Montreal.

Flyers 6, Rangers 1

Philadelphia stretched its home record to 22-2-2 as Bill Barber and rookie Mel Bridgman each scored twice while Bobby Clarke had a goal and three assists.

Bruins will be motivated

TERRY DONAHUE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New coach Terry Donahue of the UCLA football Bruins says defending the Rose Bowl title and facing one of the toughest non-conference schedules simply provides motivation.

When Dick Vermeil resigned as the Bruin coach last Sunday to join the professionals at Philadelphia, Athletic Director J. D. Morgan went to the assistant coaches and picked former Bruin defensive tackle Donahue.

"If we're co-favorites in the Pacific-8 this fall, I say that's fine," Donahue told newsmen. "It's a source of motivation. I would hate to be picked to finish last."

And the Bruins face No. 2 ranked Arizona State, Arizona, Air Force and defeated Rose Bowl representative Ohio State in the non-conference games before defending their co-championship in the Pac-8.

The 31-year-old Donahue, who says it's maturity and not chronological age that counts, says, "Our intersectional schedule will also be a great source of motivation to both the coaches and the players.

"It has to be a great proving ground and is one of the toughest non-conference scheduled in the nation."

Donahue expects to keep most of the assistants who aided Dick Vermeil, the head coach who quit to become head coach of the professional Philadelphia Eagles.

"Someone had to become head football coach and J. D. Morgan chose me," Donahue said at his initial news conference Thursday. "There were so many good men on the staff he could have chosen somebody else. But the staff has accepted his choice."

Morgan, the athletic director, said the appointment of Donahue was for a multi-year contract and was not anything of interim nature.

Asked if he thought being only 31 would be a disadvantage for a head coach, Donahue said, "I think if it has anything to do with it, it would be a distinct advantage. I think it is a question of what you have learned and maturity. The governor of California was only 35 when elected. Maturity has an overriding effect."

Morgan said the appointment of Donahue "appeared to me to be the best course of action" but didn't point out that the letter-of-intent deadline for high school seniors was next Wednesday. On that day, the outstanding football athletes must say which scholarship they'll accept.

Donahue said he believes UCLA will have an outstanding recruiting season selling the schools as well as the football program to the top high school stars.

Saying he had dreamed of becoming head coach from the very first moment he stepped on the UCLA practice field as a freshman, Donahue revealed that Vermeil had offered him an assistant's job with the pros at Philadelphia if he didn't become head UCLA coach.

"I'd hate to leave this place even for heaven," the new coach commented before a newsman pointed out that, after all, he was only 31.

Donahue said he will maintain Vermeil's Veer-T offense but hopes to have more passing than during the 1975 season. Jeff Dankworth and Steve Bukich vie for the quarterback spot vacated by All-American John Sciarra who graduates.

College baseball roundup

MSAC, Citrus win

Mt. San Antonio College bested local rival Chaffey 11-6 in the baseball opener for both teams Thursday afternoon at the MSAC field. The game was part of the Palomar JC Tourney.

In other college results involving locals, Citrus got its season off in a big way by routing Compton College 16-5 on Wednesday and 19-5 on Thursday, while Cal Poly opened its season at San Diego State Thursday and was edged 4-3 by the hosts.

MSAC used a route-going pitching job by Bob Veselic and some heavy hitting from Ron Roenicke to best the Panthers. The Mounties jumped on Chaffey starter Mike Walters for five runs in the second inning, key hit being Roenicke's bases-loaded double which drove home three.

Roenicke later added a triple and single and a another RBI to his day's work, while Mountie catcher Val Primante drove in two runs with a single.

Veselic finished with a nine-hitter, fanning seven and walking five. Bob Branchetti paced the Panther attack with two doubles.

Citrus had no trouble at all with out-classed Compton. Hurler Hank Ritchey picked up the victory, pitching seven innings and fanning 13 Compton batters. Wayne Eggleston finished up on the hill for the Owls.

Key hit was a tape-measure three-run homer by first baseman Dave Hostetler, his second round-tripper in two days.

Cal Poly was edged by S.D. State when Wayne Steele struck a leadoff, pinch-hit homer in the last of the ninth against reliever Gil Molina.

The Boncos had taken an early 3-0 lead on the strength of Kevin McLean's two-run double in the fifth and Kevin Jenkins' RBI single in the sixth.

CPP starter Bruce MacPherson pitched a strong six innings, but tired in the seventh and surrendered the tieing runs. Molina then held the Aztecs at bay until Steele struck in the final frame.

MSAC and Chaffey returned to action today in the Palomar Tourney, while Cal Poly will be under the lights at S.D. St. tonight. The Mounties played San Diego Mesa in the championship bracket of the Palomar affair at Mira Costa College, while Chaffey played Mira Costa at Oceanside East High in consolation tilt. Both those games started at 2 p.m.

The Broncos and Aztecs try it again tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Citrus will return to the diamond wars Saturday afternoon, as the Owls will host Long Beach City College at 1 p.m.

Kuhn accepts L.A. invitation

LOS ANGELES — Baseball commissioner Bowie K. Kuhn has accepted an invitation to attend the 18th renewal of the Baseball Writers Dinner April 1st at the Disneyland Hotel, starting at 6:30, according to word received by Gordon Verrell, chairman of the Los Angeles-Anaheim Chapter.

Kuhn is coming to Los Angeles from his headquarters in New York, and will be joined at the dinner by Emmett Ashford, former umpire and Los Angeles resident, who is with the commissioner's office.

Highlight of the dinner will be the presentation to Dodgers and Angels of trophies for outstanding achievements during the 1975 season.

Reservations at $25 per ticket are now being accepted at the writers' headquarters, 1352 Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles 90013; telephone (213) 626-7678.

Bronco gymnasts host USC tonight

Cal Poly's women's gymnastic team posted another first place victory last weekend in a four way meet which included La Verne College, Cal State Northridge, and UC Santa Barbara.

Poly's league record now stands at a 7-1 mark with its only loss coming at the hands of San Diego State. Coach Bruce Coulter's squad is only in its second year of competition and has shown tremendous improvement for a team that finished seventh out of eight teams last season.

This weekend the Broncos will host two home meets tonight and Saturday. Tonight, they face USC and Cal State Long Beach at 7 p.m. while Saturday, they will compete against Cal State Fullerton at 1:30 p.m. in the Bronco gymnastics room.

"We stand to either win or be a close second in conference competition (Class II) this season," coach Bruce Coulter said. "It's going to come down to the finals, and who can do the best job on the balance beam."

Top performers on the Bronco squad include twins Lauri and Lori Bently who combined to take every first place as individuals in last week's meet.

Chino loops set signups

Signups for the Chino Pony and Colt leagues will take place Saturday at the Chino High J.V. baseball field between the hours of 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Signups for the two loops will continue on Saturday's thereafter until the start of the season.

There will be a registration fee for each youth and a parent or guardian must accompany them with a birth certificate.

Bronco girls greet SLO

Cal Poly's women's basketball team, 9-2 for the season, will host archrival Cal Poly San Luis Obispo at 8:30 p.m. tonight in the women's gymnasium on campus.

Coach Darlene May's team will then entertain undefeated power UCLA Monday night at 8:30.

UCLA, 10-0 for the season after Wednesday's 90-48 rout over USC, features All-American Ann Meyers, sister of Milwaukee Bucks' rookie Dave Meyers.

The Poly girls were upset by Cal State Northridge, 63-59, Tuesday night just after stunning nationally-ranked Cal State Fullerton.

Safety course booming

Another 63,728 Californians — children and adults — completed hunter safety training in the state last year, bringing to 848,773 the number of graduates in the program that began in 1954.

Of the 1975 crop of graduates, reported James O. Holven, Department of Fish and Game hunter safety training officer, 25,1000, or more than 39 percent, were adults.

The California program, second in the nation, was the first to require the training of adults.

Holven said that the percentage of adults taking the training, which included principles of conservation and sportsmanship as well as gun and bow and arrow safety, apparently has stabilized near the 40 percent level.

The year before, when 72,229 Californians received hunter safety training, 28,911, or fully two-fifths of the total, were 18 years or older.

In 1973 the percentage was 39, and in 1972 it was 38.4. During 1971, the first full year in which the training was required for adults, 18,200 of the 56,357 students (30.9 percent) were over 18 years.

Holven had high praise for the more than 3,000 volunteer instructors who conduct classes throughout the state under DFG direction. Their dedication and skill, he said, should enable the department to continue to train up to 70,000 to 75,000 students annually.

Administrative costs of the program are borne by federal and state funds. The 75 percent federal share comes from excise taxes on pistols, revolvers and archery tackle.

Hunter safety training, now required for all first-time buyers of California hunting licenses, is credited with substantially reducing hunting accidents in the state over the last two decades.

During the first year of the program 31 persons died in 132 hunting accidents in the state. During 1974 there were nine fatalities among the 78 injuries. In 1975 there were 12 fatalities among 69 injuries reported to date, and the accident rate was slightly more than one per 10,000 hunters making hunting one of the safer participant sports.

Until 1971 the hunter safety training law applied only to youths, first to those under 16 years and later, in 1964, to those under 18.

Salmon season opens Saturday

San Francisco Bay Area ocean salmon sport anglers can look forward to a better opening than they had last year. This year's season gets underway Saturday south of Tomales Point.

Although the Department of Fish and Game stressed that it had done no pre-season experimental fishing on which to base a forecast of opening weekend success, there are two reasons for cautious optimism:

First, the weather has been holding relatively fair which would allow for increased effort and give fishermen a chance to locate schools of salmon in the Gulf of Farallones. Second, large numbers of small (shaker) king salmon were hooked and released by Bay Area fishermen toward the end of last year's season. This indicates a strong year class of king salmon that should contribute heavily to this year's landings.

During the early season most effort is usually located close to the Golden Gate with consistent catches coming off Duxbury Reef. However, if weather remains fair, good catches can also be landed as far out as the Farallon Islands.

Trout plants

The following lakes and streams, listed by county, are scheduled for restocking this week and with catchable-size rainbow trout from Department of Fish and Game hatcheries:

LOS ANGLES — Castaic Lake, Puddingstone Reservoir, Pyramid Lake.

SAN BERNARDINO — Cucamonga-Guasti Park Lake, Glen Helen Park Lake, Mojave Narrows, Silverwood Lake.

KERN — Hart Park Lake, Kern River (KR3 Powerhouse to Lake Isabella, Borell Powerhouse to Democrat Dame), Kern River State Park.

Skiers to try slopes of Sierras

HEAVENLY VALLEY, Ca. — Following the XII Winter Olympics, Heavenly Valley will host the world's top Olympian Alpine Skiers for the ski area's Eighth F.I.S. World Cup event on March 4-7. Such top competitors as American's Giant Slalom ace, Greg Jones, Italy's four-time World Cup winner, Gustavo Thoeni, Sweden's World Cup challenger, Ingemar Stenmark, West Germany's World Cup leader, Rosi Mittermaier, and America's Downhill champion, Cindy Nelson, will vie for World Cup points in the first North American 1976 World Cup Competition.

Consisting of two Giant Slalom and two Slalom events, the World Cup will be staged on Heavenly's East Bowl Run. The mile long 1700 vertical foot run is easily viewable by the several thousand spectators expected to attend.

Noted amongst the World Cup attendees will be Nevada State Governor, Mike O'Callaghan, California State Senator Dennis Carpenter, who is currently representing President Ford at the Olympic Games, and California State Senator, Clare Berryhill.

DFG stocking brown trout

Why doesn't the Department of Fish and Game be a good scout and provide a little variety for anglers by planting catchable brown trout in the Southland?

One has only to ask to receive!

Within the next three or four weeks the department will stock approximately 25,000 six- to eight-inch brown trout in four Southern California reservoirs. The trout will be trucked from the Mt. Whitney hatchery in Inyo County where they have been raised.

William M. Richardson, fisheries management supervisor, said the browns will be planted in Lake Hemet, Perris Reservoir, Castaic Reservoir and San Gabriel Reservoir No. 1. He said these waters were chosen because they offer good forage for brown trout and also the best opportunity for survival during the hot summer months.

Perris Reservoir is heavily populated with green sunfish, and rainbow trout have survived through two summers there, indicating the browns should too. Lake Hemet will offer golden shiners for forage and Castaic threadfin shad. The San Gabriel Reservoir has green sunfish and bluegill.

Brown trout are not exactly new to the Southland. Fingerlings are planted annually in back-country streams, and approximately 20,000 fingerlings were stocked in Pyramid Reservoir in 1974. Some brown trout may already be in the San Gabriel Reservoir. Plants have been made in the San Gabriel River system.

But this is the first time so many catchable brown trout will have been planted in popular fishing waters in the Southland.

"These trout were raised especially for this purpose in an attempt to provide diversity," Richardson said.

The Mt. Whitney strain of brown trout is semi-domesticated, representing about 10 generations of hatchery raised fish. Even so, they retain their wild characteristics better than catchable rainbows, according to Richardson. cording to Richardson.

"Whereas most rainbows are caught within a week to 10 days after being planted, the wily brown will avoid the hook for weeks and even months," Richardson said.

Rain helps anglers

Heavy rains over the past few days have broken the grip of an extended drought that had threatened streams fishing this year in Southern California.

Prior to the rains, the Department of Fish and Game had stopped stocking many streams normally fished during the winter and spring months.

Some of these streams are to be stocked with catchable rainbow trout this week; others will be stocked as soon as mud and silt have settled to the stream bed.

Ventura County anglers will be the first to benefit from the rains. Matilija Creek, Santa Paula Creek, lower Sespe Creek and the north fork of the Ventura River will be scheduled this week, stream condition permitting.

In Santa Barbara County fish and game wardens were expected to report today on conditions at Davy Brown and Manzana creeks and the Santa Ynez River. Four inches of rain were reported in Santa Barbara County over the weekend.

Los Angeles County streams were reported in excellent shape by warden Capt. William Sheflin, who said stocking could be resumed as soon as the streams cleared. Conditions were not so promising in Orange County, however. Sheflin said additonal rains would be needed to create suitable stream conditions for planting.

From San Bernardino, Capt. Tom Harrison reports heavy rains over the weekend improved stream conditions remarkedly. He said a heavy snowfall in the San Bernardino Mountains should provide a good runoff for streams.

Capt. John Roumasset reported San Diego County is good shape as result of the rains. The 5.10 inches of rain thus far this season is just below normal. In the mountain areas, Palomar received 13.71 inches and Cuyamaca 9.90 inches, with snow above the 7,000-foot level. Stream conditions are normal.

Officials of the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power have their fingers crossed, hoping snow will continue to fall in the Sierra and reverse the bleak outlook for spring runoff predicted on Feb. 1. At that time the prediction was for a eastern Sierra stream runoff about 50 per cent of normal, and less than that south of Independence.

All was not good news from the Los Angeles County front. At Hansen Dam Reservoir, which is fed by streams that cross the fire-scarred Angeles Forest, a large fish kill resulted when the oxygen content of the water dipped to near zero.

The estimated casualties were 15,000 to 20,000 threadfin shad, 50 to 100 rainbow trout and 25 to 50 green sunfish.

Warden William Peters, who inspected the reservoir this morning, said the entire surface was covered by a layer of ash, and the only oxygen of any consequence was where the runoff from Big Tijunga Creek boiled into the reservoir. Peters said it appeared unlikely that any fish would survive.

Water quality biologist Brian Quelvog was to test water samples today to determine if these was any toxic material in the ash.

Hansen Dam has been stocked on an emergency weekly basis for the past month because Fish and Game officials have been concerned about just such a runoff.

'Cheaters' post wins at Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "I guess you've got two cheaters in Victory Lane," Dave Marcis quipped after he and Darrell Waltrip won a pair of 125-mile qualifying races for Sunday's $350,000 Daytona 500 stock car classic.

Those two young rising stars of National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing Grand National racing were set down for rules violations after posting some of the fastest times in pole position qualifying last Sunday.

Officials ruled that the cars of Marcis, Waltrip, A.J. Foyt and Bruce Hill were speeded up by "non-approved" equipment. They had to make changes, requalify and start back in the pack for the 125-milers Thursday.

"It didn't hurt Dave and me much as it turned out," Waltrip said. "We just lost a position or two for Sunday. Justice will prevail, and I guess it did."

Foyt, whose Chevrolet developed mechanical trouble and lasted only nine laps, will start in 31st place. As fastest on Sunday, at 187.477 miles per hour, he would have been on the pole and $5,000 richer if his speed had not been disallowed.

Hill's Chevrolet made only four laps in the qualifier and he'll start 33rd.

The Marcis Dodge and Waltrip Chevrolet will start in the second row behind new faces Ramo Stott and Terry Ryan in a pair of Chevrolets. Stott and Ryan, whose cars were legal, inherited the inside and outside pole because of the three disallowed speeds.

Stott's car malfunctioned at the start of the first 125-miler and made only 35 of the 50 laps. Ryan was competitive and finished third behind Waltrip and Richard Petty's Dodge in the second qualifying event.

Speed Weeks attention turned today to the windup of the International Race of Champions series with Foyt favored to take the $50,000 winner's prize. After three previous races in Michigan and California, Foyt leads the nine top drivers chosen from Formula I, NASCAR and Indianapolis type cars.

In fact, Foyt with 31 points needed only to finsh sixth or better to win the series. Bobby Allison with 25 points and Mario Andretti with 23 are the only ones who could beat him.

A 200-mile race around the 3.84-mile road course for NASCAR modified stock cars also was on today's program. A 300-mile event for NASCAR Late Model Sportsman stock cars will be run Saturday as a buildup for Sunday's richest stock car race ever run.

A favorable weather forecast is expected to draw more than 110,000 for Sunday's events. Nearly 60,000 were on hand for Thursday's qualifying races.

The qualifying events were as different as possible with two races matching the same type cars over the same course and distance, except one driver from each was hospitalized.

In the first race, John Banks, of Windsor, Ontario, flipped end over end and then went into a barrel roll going into the 31-degree banking of the 2.5-mile superspeedway. He said he felt all right when taken to the infield hospital, but was taken to Halifax General Hospital for overnight observation for a possible concussion. Otherwise doctors said he had only multiple cuts and bruises.

Dave Decker of Elmhurst, Ill., crashed into the concrete barrier along the backstretch in the second race. He also was hospitalized overnight, for a possible cracked sternum.

Waltrip gambled on gasoline and beat Petty by half a lap. He pitted for fuel and repair of a flat tire during an early caution period, while the others waited until later to make stops under green.

"We gambled and won," Waltrip said. "I could have run out of gas a lap before the finish. Instead, I ran out on the lap after. At least we know we can get nearly 100 miles on a tank (22 gallons) of gasoline Sunday."

Marcis lost time early in his race because his gearshift stuck in third and forced a stop.

"I took a wrench and hammered it into fourth gear—and there it stayed,"

Poly swimmers face busy slate

Cal Poly's swim team will take an overall dual meet record of 3-4 into two contests this weekend against Pepperdine and Ventura College (a double dual) plus UC Santa Barbara.

The Broncos will travel to Pepperdine today (meet time 2:30 p.m.) and will host UC Santa Barbara at 11:00 a.m. Saturday in the Bronco pool.

"We match up very well against Santa Barbara and it should be a very good meet for us," stated Coach Bob Yamate. "As for Pepperdine, they are one of the better Division I schools in the country. But hopefully we'll make a respectable showing against them," he added.

Last Friday Poly defeated Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, who was ranked 8th in Division II in a pre-season poll, by a score of 64-49. That defeat was the first dual meet loss the Mustangs have suffered this season. Also last weekend, the Broncos narrowly lost to Fresno State, 57-56.

Orioles release T. Davis

BALTIMORE (AP) — Tommy Davis, a one-time National League batting champion who found a second life as a designated hitter in the American League, was placed on waivers today by the Baltimore Orioles.

Davis, who will be 37 next month, batted .283 last season, the second-highest average on the club, but his 57 runs batted in marked a sharp decline from his team-best totals of 89 and 84 in 1973 and 1974, respectively.

A .295 hitter over 16 major league seasons, Davis was the Orioles' prime designated hitter during the three seasons the rule has been in effect.

Overall as a DH, he compiled a .289 average and accumulated more at-bats and hits than any other American Leaguer in that spot.

Davis signed with his hometown Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956 and played his first seven major league seasons in a Dodger uniform, joining the club after it moved to Los Angeles.

During that period he twice led the National League in hitting, with a .346 average in 1962 and .326 the following year.

In 1965, Davis suffered a broken ankle, an injury that forced him to the sidelines for most of the season and placed his career in jeopardy.

Robbed of his one-blazing speed, Davis bounced around the majors, playing for eight clubs in eight years before being traded to the Orioles late in the 1972 season.

Last July, Davis reached a pair of milestones, collecting his 2,000th major league hit and his 1,000th RBI. During that same period he hit his fifth and sixth career grand slam home runs within six days of each other.

Davis' release apparently makes room for the Orioles to hand the designated hitter ob tq Don Baylor, a hard-hitting outfielder known for his defensive weaknesses.

"We say our 1976 Winnebagos give you more solid value than any other motor home you can buy. Model for model. Feature for feature. Dollar for dollar. Come in and let us prove it to you now."

*Manufacturer's suggested list price, $100 freight included, taxes and dealer prep extra.

Compare protection after the sale:

What happens after you drive your new motor home off your dealer's lot? That's a very big question, because a motor home is a very big investment. At Winnebago, we think we offer you more protection for that investment than any other motor home manufacturer. It's called the Winnebago Homeowners Plan.

BETTER PROTECTION

Winnebago's limited warranty is designed to comply with recent Federal legislation. Further, we've made some substantial improvements. Items previously covered for only 90 days are now included in our standard 12-month/12,000-mile coverage periods. This includes carpets, electrical systems, plumbing, seats, cushion fabrics and windows.

SERVICE, SERVICE EVERYWHERE

No one buys a motor home to sit in the driveway. So Winnebago has put together a network of over 300 service centers. From coast to coast across the U.S., even in Canada and Alaska.

A FRIEND AT THE FACTORY

If a Winnebago owner ever has any questions, suggestions or complaints, he can get in touch with our Customer Relations Department at Headquarters in Forest City, Iowa.

SAFETY FIRST

You'd never hoist your motor home several feet in the air and then deliberately drop it. But that's what Winnebago did recently to prove the structural integrity of their exclusive Thermo-Steel® construction. That test is only one part of an extensive safety program initiated by Winnebago.

MORE MONEY BACK

Every smart homeowner should consider resale value. Based on a comparison of three-year-old motor home prices in the May-August, 1975 N.A.D.A. Recreational Vehicle Appraisal Guide, Winnebago held a higher resale value than the average of all listed competitive models.

Only Winnebago offers you the Homeowners Plan with any new 1976 model you choose!

Compare features:

Winnebago listens to what owners of different brands of motor homes say they want and need. Last year, we listened to more than 3000 of them, all across the U.S. We heard their compliments and complaints loud and clear. That's why this year's Winnebagos bring you more practical, livable features than ever before.

IMPROVED CAPACITY FOR WATER, GAS AND HOLDING TANKS

It's no fun to run out of gas or water or be stuck with a full holding tank when you're off the beaten path on your own. So we've redesigned our tanks to give you more water and holding capacity on several models. And now, some Winnebagos carry up to 65 gallons of gasoline.

BETTER STORAGE SPACE INSIDE AND OUT

When you go Winnebago, you don't have to travel light. To our already generous inside storage, we've added extra tuck-away space in places like new bunk/cabinets and dinette seat backs. Many models also feature a full-length wardrobe plus roll-out pantry shelves.

Outside, there's weathertight storage space on every model. The Custom even boasts a separate, key-locked trunk.

NEW OPEN-SPACE FLOOR PLANS

This year, Winnebago offers 16 different floor plans, including several aimed specifically at creating an open, uncrowded look. Divider curtains push back to open up large living and entertaining areas; closed, they provide sleeping and dressing privacy.

MORE BUILT-IN LIVABILITY

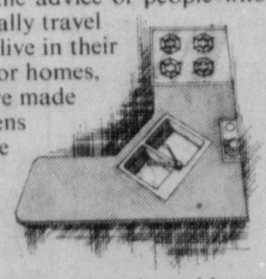
On the advice of people who actually travel and live in their motor homes, we've made dozens more



"little" changes that add up to a big improvement in comfort and convenience.

A low door step, padded cabinet ends and corners save you nasty head bumps when entering. Cabinets and drawers latch securely for traveling, yet open easily with one hand. Improved venting carries moisture and odors away, yet keeps bugs outside. Other improvements include single dump outlets, simplified wiring, spacemaking countertop arrangements. And several models now feature tub/shower compartments separate from the rest of the bathroom.

The more you live in a new Winnebago, the more you'll like its thoughtful features.

New 23-ft. Minnie Winnie.

MORE SPACE, MORE BUILT-IN VALUE

Some of the extra space comes from the extra length of this new mini motor home, but that's not all. Now, a cab roof cutout gives you stand-up, walk-through passage to the living area. Inside headroom is 6'8" rear, 6'11" front.

Our 23RB model also boasts a separate tub and shower compartment and an enlarged front bunk. Double sink, 4-burner stove and 6 c.f. refrigerator are standard.

See the exciting Custom Elán dan!

This new limited edition Winnebago is 29 feet of plush comfort, sleek style and modern convenience. It's loaded with luxury features like copper-inlaid counter top, thick, sculptured carpeting, soft, natural leather upholstery and walnut walls and cabinetry throughout. Quadraphonic sound system and color TV are also included.

Ask your dealer for showing dates and availability of the Elán dan. Manufacturer's suggested list price: $44,323 ($100 freight included. Taxes, dealer preparation charge extra.)

Quick facts for motor home buyers.

MORE REPEAT BUYERS

More Winnebago owners purchase Winnebagos a second or third time than do owners of any other motor home brand. And a higher percentage of Winnebago owners said they would recommend their choice of motor homes to their friends.

NUMBER ONE IN QUALITY

In a recent nationwide survey, motor home owners (of all makes) ranked Winnebago first in quality and first in service as well.

EQUALIZED FREIGHT RATES

Winnebago has now averaged out freight rates all across the country. You pay the same $100 shipping cost no matter where in the U.S. you live (except in Alaska or Hawaii). The same $100 cost applies throughout Canada.

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

There has been an inordinate amount of activity this week on the local restaurant-night club scene. There are some new restaurant openings I want to talk about and a few changes which may be of interest to you. These account for some of the extra activity, but most of it has undoubtedly been generated by valley restaurants offering something special for you and your wife/husband/sweetheart/date for tomorrow . . . Saturday . . . Valentine's Day!

(If you haven't sent her a card by now, Fred, forget it! But all is not lost. Just use Weekend! as your guide in selecting a special place to take your Valentine tomorrow night. You know, good food, a little wine, soft music . . . got the picture?)

* * *

A new club in the area you might want to drop in to take a look at is The Younger Bros. in Chino. Located at Central and Francis, the club reminds me of Upland's Boar's Head in several ways. It's tucked into the corner of a little shopping center, and its dark, wood-grained, English pub atmosphere belies the western saloon preconception I had gotten from the name alone. Owners of the place are Bob and Henry Young who, in selecting a moniker for their place, came up with a play on names in borrowing some romantic nostalgia from the Jesse James era.

I was there last Saturday evening as was a good first weekend crowd. The duo, Borelli & Hart, play there every night the club is open, Monday through Saturday.

* * *

I didn't really go there for the entertainment anyway, and after hearing several renditions of "Happy Birthday to You" by the crew of S.S. Tugboat Annie, I decided not to comment on it either. But I will say that what the crew lacked in talent, they more than made up for in enthusiasm last Friday night when I visited that listing seafoods restaurant you see on Foothill Blvd. in Claremont. But when Captain Bob (Chamberland) got back to the fridge, er, bridge after his brief vocalizing, he was clearly in charge of a galley dispensing some 350 dinners that evening. My baked halibut was excellent, and I had forgotten how good the clam chowder is there. My compliments to the Cap'n!

* * *

I have taken a good deal of good-natured ribbing from my erstwhile friends concerning the "inevitability" of my gaining weight in this new food and drink oriented career of mine. I have never in the past had to worry about the waistline, being from rather bony and slender stock. (In fact I don't even own a bathroom scale.) Recently, however, I HAVE noticed the image in the mirror seems a little more fully packed. I guess I really became painfully aware of my friends' prophecy at Naples Italian restaurant in Pomona last Tuesday when I demolished a plate of spaghetti and two orders of garlic bread for lunch. but it was so GOOD! Maybe I can find some good weight-watchers specials around in our restaurants to pass on to you in case you have the same problem.

* * *

There are several interesting new names cropping up in today's Weekend! One of them, La Scala Italian Restaurant, opened for business last month in Chino and is located a block east of Central Ave. on Riverside Drive. The owner, Bill Riley, enlarged and refurbished the former Ozzie's Oasis there and is offering some coupon specials in his ad on this page.

Another, the Garura, is an extention of an Indonesian restaurant by the same name in Pasadena owned by Rudy de Groot. Rudy's Pomona restaurant is located in Garey Center, Foothill & Garey, Pomona, and features the famous rice Tafel multi-course dinner menu.

And then there's the Dandy Lion Wine Co.! An attractive sandwich house featuring a large selection of wines, the DLWCo. name is a takeoff on that of the actual Dandelion Wine Co. founded in the 1800s in, of all places, Chanute, Kansas. It's located over the hill in West Covina, just above Workman on Citrus.

* *

In talking with Ralph Hicks the other day, I found that The Ponderosa Club in Pomona is under new management. Between Ralph and co-manager Ted Hicks, they've managed country music night clubs for the past twenty years. The club, as you may know, features Eddie Steel and his country music band every Friday and Saturday night. A feature of the club is its after hours program which, according to the owners, see musicians from around the area dropping in for jam sessions after 2:00 A.M. The

A group I really enjoyed recently is Fun Factory, five zanies whose antics keep the audience laughing at Tiffiny's in north Pomona. I caught their opening night last week and found their show set (the 2nd) very entertaining. They bound around the club involving the audience in their fast-paced lunacy, their timing and unique interpretations of numbers like "Let Me Be The One" (You Turn To) and "A Boy Named Sue," convincing me that Fun Factory has put together a pretty good act.

Henri's, the French Basque restaurant in Montclair off Central, is going to a family style service, according to owner Henri Arrambide. You'll find the restaurant's daily menu offerings contained in an ad on page 33. The popular duo there, Sami & Jay, are now playing five nights a week. And, by the way, they have a new record out containing a song they have hopes for, called "Carefree."

Barbara Parkins

Far from Peyton Place

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was just 10 years ago, Barbara Parkins, recalled, that the nighttime television serial "Peyton Place" started to engross the nation with its steamy tales of small-town life.

Besides giving new life to the ailing ABC network, the series helped launch a number of careers, including those of Mia Farrow, Ryan O'Neal, Cris Connolly, Patricia Morrow — and Barbara Parkins.

"That was a wonderful period of my life, those five years in 'Peyton Place,'" Miss Parkins reflects. "Anyone in a series is anxious to get out, and I was glad when the five years were over and I could start looking for new vistas. But 'Peyton Place' left me with nothing but good memories."

She sought her new vistas abroad. After finishing her role in "Valley Of The Dolls," she left to visit London and decided to stay there. "It was the fulfillment of something I vowed when I was a girl in British Columbia," she said. "It was the time of the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. When I saw her on her visit to Canada, I told myself, 'Some day I'm going to live in London and I'm going to meet the queen.'"

Hollywood could never quite figure Barbara Parkins. She was ambitious and unpredictable. She talked back to studio executives and posed nude for a Playboy spread before it was fashionable for actresses to do so. Her love life kept the columnists compiling such names as Ryan O'Neal, Adam ("Batman") West, Bobby Rydell, Robert Evans, Eddie Fisher, John Philip Law and Omar Sharif.

Some Parkins watchers thought it suicidal when she abandoned Hollywood for a London flat. Back here for a visit, she explained why she left: "I wasn't mature enough to do the kind of role I wanted to do. I wasn't strong enough — or slender enough; I was too pudgy. Now I've lost weight and I've matured. I'm a woman, and I can handle anything in the acting line that comes along."

She has made strides toward proving that in Europe. She did two rather forgettable films to fulfill her contract with Twentieth Century-Fox — "The Kremlin Letter" and "The Mephisto Waltz." Recently she was seen on public television as Leonie, Winston Churchill's aunt in the English-made miniseries, "Jennie, Lady Randolph Churchill." She displayed a depth of feeling that was light years removed from "Peyton Place."

Now she has her biggest break to date, playing opposite Lee Marvin and Roger Moore in the African spectacle, "Shout at the Devil," which American International Pictures recently acquired for release in this country and Canada. Producer Michael Klinger reportedly poured $9.5 million into the film, which concerns the struggle to destroy a German battleship in Africa during World War I.

"I'm a leading lady, sandwiched between an American star and an English star; nothing wrong with that," she said happily.

Miss Parkins, 31, was here for business matters and to see old friends, also to kill time before a return to London — "I can't stay in England more than six months a year or I'll have to pay 50 per cent of the income to the government." She lives right in the city and can rhapsodize about the London life — "the architecture draws you into the streets and the pubs draw you into their cheerful warmth; the city is irresistible."

Romances? Of course. She doesn't talk about them but seeing them in print no longer bothers her — "you have to give up your privacy in some way or another when you're in the limelight."

Each year she spends her time out of England traveling to "some place I've always wanted to go. Nice life? She planned for it. "I had a dear, wonderful business manager who invested my 'Peyton Place' earnings well," she said.

RARE BEN — Comedian Iggie Wolfington plays Benjamin Franklin in the San Bernardino Civic Light Opera production of the Broadway musical hit, "1776," opening at 8:15 tonight at the California Theater of Performing Arts in San Bernardino. The play runs through Feb. 21.

Indian jewelry demonstration

Margaret Martinez of Cahuilla Silversmiths in Sun Valley will give a demonstration of Indian jewelry making at 2 p.m. Sunday at Malki Museum on the Morongo Indian Reservation just east of Banning.

The demonstration, to be held in the new adobe building on the Malki fiesta grounds, is the first of the 1976 series of programs at the museum. Admission is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for students. Parking is free.

Working in silver and California turquoise from the Death Valley area, Mrs. Martinez will complete a piece of jewelry during her talk. She will also answer any questions from persons in the audience.

There will be a display of Mrs. Martinez' works which are available for purchase. One of her famous designs is the Cahuilla "waterdog," used as a symbol by Malki Museum.

Mrs. Martinez is well-known to those who have visited Indian craft shows throughout Southern California. She and her family have been active in Malki Museum for many years, and her booth at the Malki Memorial Day weekend fiesta is an annual attraction. She has also appeared on Los Angeles television.

Malki's speaker series is presented annually to help raise funds to complete the interior of the new museum building. Food will be served before and after the jewelry-making demonstration.

The museum is located on Fields Road, 1½ miles north of Interstate 10.

Disney studios keeping busy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Theater owners who complain about product shortage can find an ally in Walt Disney Productions.

The company plans to release 10 movies this year, a record for the firm. The new films are "No Deposit, No Return," "Ride a Wild Pony," "Gus," "Treasure of Matecumbe" and "The Shaggy D.A." Disney will also bring back its "Dumbo," "Blackbeard's Ghost," "Peter Pan," "Follow Me, Boys" and "The Gnome-Mobile."

Statuary hall

The National Statuary Hall in the U.S. Capitol occupies the original quarters of the House of Representatives. It was created in 1964 and each state was invited to contribute not more than two statues of distinguished persons. In 1933 the number was limited to one statue from each state. To date a total of 91 statues has been contributed by the 50 states.

Who tickets on sale

Mail orders are now being accepted for tickets to the Who's only Southern California concert this spring, to be held at Anaheim Stadium at 2 p.m. March 21.

Tickets at $10 each are limited to six per person. A 50-cent charge is made for handling. Orders must be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope. Orders should be sent to The Who Anaheim Stadium Concert, Box 4022, Anaheim 92803.

The concert will be a homecoming for the popular British rock group which was the first group to give a concert in the stadium. That was in 1970. Stadium officials closed the facility to rock concerts for five years, but reinstituted them last summer. The Who is the fourth group to appear there since the ban was lifted.

The nickel was authorized as coinage May 16, 1866.

You may be familiar with dry ice as the small, frosty pellets that the ice-cream vendor uses to keep his ice cream frozen for many hours.

Dry ice is a frozen form of a gas called carbon dioxide, the same gas that produces the bubbles in a soft drink.

Dry ice is really dry. It doesn't melt and become a liquid, like ice that is made from water. Instead, dry ice changes back into a gas as it thaws.

To make dry ice, carbon dioxide gas is compressed to a liquid and cooled. When this cold liquid is allowed to expand rapidly from the high pressure to normal atmospheric pressure, it forms a carbon dioxide snow.

This snow is pressed into blocks of solid dry ice. Dry ice is much colder than ordinary ice.

It is dangerous to handle with your bare hands because it will cause a frostbite, which will feel like a burn.

Dry ice is used to pack ice cream and other frozen foods for shipping. It cannot melt and spoil the wrappings.

Chino church setting for rite

The Seventh-day Adventist Church in Chino was the setting for the marriage of Miss Bertha Flores of Chino and Jose Erazo of Chino.

The couple was married by the Rev. C. R. Malan in an afternoon ceremony followed by a reception held at the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Flores of San Diego. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jose R. Erazo of El Salvador.

Enriqueta Escaher of Cucamonga was honor attendant.

Serving as best man was Gilbert Flores of Garden Grove.

Bridesmaids were Ikidono Chin and Josephine Chin, both of Riverside.

Ushers were Abel Leecio and Rose Leecio, both of Cucamonga.

The newlyweds honeymooned in El Salvador, Central America, and are now at home in Chino.
